News from California.

THE CROPS—WAGON-ROAD MEETINGS—THE MINES—ANOTHER INDICTMENT AGAINST THE STATE TREASURER—MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

In California few events of more than ordinary interest have occurred during the fortnight ending the 20th ult.

Frequent showers throughout the State have been of immense benefit to the growing crops, and although the yield this year will be far below the average, still they are by no means ruined, as was feared they would be a few weeks ago. Fruits and vegetables have suffered little from the drought. San Francisco markets are supplied with an abundance of strawberries, raspberries and cherries, all of which may be obtained at reasonable prices.

Conventions have been the order of the day during the fortnight. Wagon-road meetings have been held in Sacramento, in Calaveras, in Yuba, and in Shasta Counties, all of which declared in favor of different routes for a wagon-road across the Sierra Nevada to intersect with the great overland national highway. The Conventions were all well attended, and much interest evinced. Committees were duly appointed to collect subscriptions to aid in constructing the several projected routes.

A Convention of the Episcopal Church of the State was held at Sacramento on the 7th. From the annual report of the Bishop, it appears that two new churches were consecrated during the year. The Masonic fraternity have held a Convention at the capital, and the Odd Fellows another in San Francisco. Both of these orders are in a very flourishing condition.

The mines, as usual, continue to yield up their golden treasures. Fewer accounts of "big strikes" are chronicled, as time advances, but the diggings generally are paying quite as well as ever. Much more confidence prevails relative to quartz mining, as is evidenced by the increasing capital being invested in this branch of mining enterprise.

Still another indictment has been found against Dr. BATES, the defaulting State Treasurer, now under arrest in Sacramento. It is alleged that he has embezzled $61,000 of the State's monies, which is over and above the missing $134,000. In default of bail in the sum of $50,000, he was ordered into custody. He is said to be very ill—so much so as to be unable to leave his bed. An officer constantly guards his room.

The trial of NED MCGOWAN was to take place at Napa, on the 22d ult. The prevailing impression is that he will, this time, get clear of the gallows.

No further disturbances have taken place amongst the Indians in the northern part of the State, although their enmity to the whites continues unabated. Great numbers have been sent from Sierra and Plumas Counties to the Nome Lackee Reserve, Mam, in Tehama County.

Amusements of all kinds have been well patronized throughout the State, during the fortnight.

The seventh anniversary of the San Francisco Baptist Association was held at the Washington-street Baptist Church, San Francisco, on the 9th ult. Nineteen Churches are embraced in the Association, ten of which were represented. The following Churches applied for admission, and were received: Vallecito Baptist Church, Mariposa; Tabernacle Baptist Church, San Francisco; Uniontown Baptist Church, El Dorado; Mount Pleasant Baptist Church, Solano County; Sansome Baptist Church, Sacramento; Marysville Baptist Church, Marysville; Vaca Valley Baptist Church, Vaca Valley. The following gentlemen were elected permanent officers of the Association: Rev. J. LEWIS RUSSEL, of Sacramento, Moderator; Brother J. F. POTS, Clerk; A. GORDON, Treasurer; R. B. BRIERLY, Corresponding Secretary.

HOSTILITIES BY INDIANS—FEARS OF ANOTHER INDIAN WAR—ARRIVAL OF GEN. LANE—REPUBLICAN TERRITORIAL CONVENTION.

Advices from Portland, O. T., are to May 9.

The Oregonian of May 2d says: We have reports that a delegation of Yakima Indians recently visited the Indian reservation at White Salmon on the Columbia, above the Cascades, and demanded that the Indians there should join the "hostiles" in a war against the whites, under the penalty of death. It is also reported that the Indian women and children on the reservation have been sent away, or left and gone to the Cascades. It is the opinion of all well-informed army officers that the Indian war will be recommenced as soon as the proper season opens.

The Northern Indians are also as troublesome as ever on the lower part of Puget Sound and Straits, committing robberies, etc. Fears are entertained that they will make open warfare upon the settlements. At Bellingham Bay the citizens are forted up in block houses, and have organized a volunteer company to aid the military in case of an attack by these savages.

A British vessel recently left McDonald's Island with a large cargo of spars for the English navy, being the fourth cargo shipped from that place within a year for the English, United States and French navies.

the Dalles, in which WM. LAMBERT was killed by GEORGE WELCH. It seems that LAMBERT followed WELCH, wanted to fight and assaulted WELCH, and that WELCH to keep him away from him, struck LAMBERT on the head with his fist and death ensued. WELCH was examined before a Justice's Court and acquitted.

The Democratic Standard of April 25, says the arrival of Gen. LANE was hailed by the firing of cannon; a committee was appointed on the part of the citizens to provide for him quarters at the Metropolitan, and to escort him thereto. During the day he received the congratulations of his friends at his rooms. He appears hale and hearty. While the events were taking place on the Columbia, one of the finest of the vessels had had her stern shot off by the accidental discharge of a cannon while she was loading.

A Convention has been called by the Republicans, to meet in this county, to elect Delegates to the Territorial Convention, to be held at Olympia on the 12th inst.

Massacre in Utah.

Our correspondent at Great Salt Lake has already given us accounts, of the assassination of Messrs. PARRISH and POTTER. They were published anxiously in this journal several weeks ago. We find corroboratory news of this massacre in the California papers. The mail from Salt Lake, says the Los Angeles Star, arrived here this week, bringing intelligence of another horrible massacre having been committed in Utah Territory. The circumstances, as they have been related to us by gentlemen who came here from San Bernardino, where the mail-carrier from Salt Lake stops, are as follows:

Mr. WM. PARRISH, his son, a young man about 17 years of age, and a Mr. POTTER, started from the city for the purpose of coming to California. They had proceeded but a short distance, when their bodies were found dead. Mr. PARRISH's throat was cut from ear to ear; the others had been shot. Their bodies were found at a place called Springville, about fifty miles from Salt Lake City.

It is not known by whom the outrage was committed. Rumor has it that Mr. PARRISH had a difficulty with the authorities about removing his property, which he had previously "consecrated" to the Church. We give the rumor as we heard it. It is also said that the massacre was perpetrated by Indians. The intelligence of this murder caused the greatest excitement in San Bernardino, where part of Mr. PARRISH's family reside, as well as generally throughout the country.

We hope an investigation by the Government authorities will be made into this massacre, and the guilty parties made to feel the heavy arm of the law. These outrages are of so frequent occurrence, that it behooves the local authorities to take steps to bring the perpetrators to punishment.

News from the Sandwich Islands.

THE WHALING FLEET—BRITISH WAR VESSELS EN ROUTE FOR CHINA—ANOTHER GRAND EXPEDITION.

Dates from Honolulu are to the 16th of April. The news is not at all important.

The wants of the whaling fleet for this season have been few, and business, therefore, correspondingly light. The great decrease in the number of ships in the North Pacific this, compared with former years, tells on the business of the island; and merchants, anticipating a steady decrease of the fleet year after year, are themselves going into the whaling business with a right good will.

On the 10th of April arrived at Honolulu H. B. M. R. (propeller) Tribune, from Callao, bound to China. She took in a stock of coal, (about 150 tons,) a few provisions and small stores, and sailed the following Monday for China. The Esk and Pearl (propellers) were overdue, both bound to China.

H. I. M. S. Bergdice had sailed for the Leeward Islands for a short cruise, having His Majesty and suite on board; she would be absent a month.

Another guano expedition, under command of Capt. PATY, is being prosecuted. The vessel sailed on the 16th of April, bound to Bird Island, (one of the Hawaiian group,) as we are informed, under the head of "By Authority," in the Polynesian of March 28, 1857, "and all reefs, banks, and rocks contiguous thereto," etc. That there are myriads of birds in the vicinity of said Island is a fact, and it is reasonable to suppose there must be some deposits of the materials of which guano is composed; but is more than probable the heavy rains that fall there frequently have totally destroyed its value.

The Captain of the Delphin reports that the sloop built and owned by the Mormons, had been wrecked on Niihau. She is reported a total loss.

The Fate of the Crabb Expedition.

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE DEFEAT AND EXECUTION OF HENRY A. CRABB AND NINETY OF HIS PARTY AT CAVORCA, SONORA.

From the San Diego Herald, May 6.

In our last issue we published a rumor of the entire destruction of HENRY A. CRABB's party, numbering about 100 men, by the Mexicans in Sonora. By the following statement of the facts, kindly furnished us by a gentleman just arrived from Fort Yuma, it will be seen that the rumor has been confirmed. He says:

The expedition into Sonora, under the command of H. A. CRABB, has had a most disastrous end.

Late in March CRABB's party left Sonoita, Sonora, and marched to Cavorca, a small Mexican town near Point Lobos, on the Gulf of California. The first intention was to have proceeded to Altar, but news of its partial fortification and susceptibility of a strong defence caused the diversion on Cavorca. On the morning of the 1st of April the party of Americans entered the suburbs of the town. They were met by a body of Mexican troops, commanded by RODRIGUES. It is said RODRIGUES advanced to speak to CRABB, when the Americans opened fire and killed the Mexican commander and several others. The Mexicans immediately retreated—some to the mountains, but the majority to the church, which had been placed in a state of defence, and had at the time CRABB entered the town a number of beeves roasting whole in front of it, to feed the Mexican troops.

It appears that here occurred CRABB's first and fatal mistake. Instead of at once charging and taking the church, which would have given him the town, he occupied several houses on the corner of the Plaza, in front of the church.

The Mexicans at first deserted the most of the town, but gradually being emboldened returned, and gradually surrounded the Americans in. Fighting continued eight days, with a loss to the Americans of twenty-five killed. The Mexican loss is reported by themselves to have been twenty-five, but is supposed to have been much greater, as high as 200. On the eighth day an attempt was made by two of CRABB's men to blow up the church, by placing a keg of powder under the portico and firing it. The devoted men who attempted this both were killed, and CRABB is said to have been wounded in superintending it. It is said an offer was made by CRABB to retire if the Mexicans would allow it. He had refused to retire when the offer was made him, after the fighting had continued two days, and now the Mexicans, confident of his weakness and their triumph, refused. The Americans were gradually but surely caught in a snare, from which they saw no escape.

By breaking through the walls of the adjoining houses the Mexicans forced CRABB and his men into the corner buildings, which they repeatedly set on fire, but which the Americans as often extinguished. At last a Papago Indian shot into the roof of the main building, occupied by the unhappy filibusters, a lighted arrow. The flames caught the roof, and in a few moments the fire was dropping in great flakes upon the heads of the doomed men within. Worn out with constant fighting, exhausted with anxiety, famished by probable days of starvation and thirst, and without ammunition, HENRY A. CRABB and fifty-eight men marched out of the burning house, with a white flag before them, laid down their arms and surrendered. It is supposed unconditionally. This was in the night or towards morning. They were immediately tied, their hands behind them, taken to a corral near the Alcalde's office, where they were kept until morning, when they were taken out in squads of 5 and 10 each and shot. In the first executions it was found that the calmness of the Americans discomposed the executioners and they shot too high or too low, in many cases only wounding their victims. The backs of the fated men were then turned to the troops, and then they succeeded in aiming with better effect.

McCORN, (may he rest in peace,) owing to his great stature, was saved this torture, a ball struck him full in the breast at the first fire, and he fell dead. CRABB alone was reserved for a solitary death. He was taken to the Alcade's office, questioned, allowed to write a letter to to his wife, and to have an interview with a Dr. EVANS, a prisoner in the hands of the Mexicans, who had been in confinement some weeks, on suspicion. The hour for his execution having arrived, he was led out, his hands stretched above his head, and tied to a post in front of the building he had occupied, his face to the post, and his back to the executioners. At the command fire, at least an hundred balls were fixed into his body, and all that was mortal of HENRY A. CRABB hung dead, swinging by his tied hands. A Mexican stepped forward, and with a large knife severed his head from the body—the warm blood spirting half way across the street. The head was placed on a table in front, or in the office of the Juez, exposed to the jeers of the populace. It was then placed in a jar of mescal, for preservation.

Is there not something peculiarly terrible in such a fate for a man who has once controlled almost the destiny of a great State like California?

Two of the ALMADA's (brothers-in-law of CRABB) are said to be killed, and also RANDY RIVES. My informant, an intelligent man and an eye-witness of these horrors, says CRABB died as a gentleman should, as calmly and quietly as if he were going to a pleasant home.

Four men, sick, had been left at Sonoita by CRABB. They occupied the house owned by R. E. DUNBAR, Esq., on the American side of the line. On the 19th April, at night, a party of 25 Mexicans came up from Sot Peas, went to DUNBAR's house, took these four sick men out of bed, tied them, and at dawn of day carried them to the foot of the hill, shot them like dogs, as they could not walk, and left them to rot. A party of Papago Indians, more merciful, buried them, and four soldiers, mounted new opponents, witnesses of a beastly crime, to the American government for revenge. With such an account we have heard?

Mr. DUNBAR had escaped unknown, leaving his Sonoita on the afternoon previous. The Mexicans were furious at his escape, [illegible] to do with the party except [illegible] left, to drag sick men, in his own house.

A party of about thirty soldiers, under Capt. [illegible] Ogden, started from Tucson to [illegible] Cavorca. When within fifteen miles of the place they were attacked by about 300 Mexicans. Capt. OGDEN retreated, fighting, and regained the American line with a loss of only four killed. The Mexican loss was about forty. Capt. OGDEN deserves great credit for his skill. At every watering place the Mexicans attempted to check him and subdue him by thirst, but he routed them on every occasion. The last night infact was a continued running fight, and his fourth man lost was killed just at the line. Another party, of the same strength, which left Tubac, has not yet been heard of. It is believed if CAPTAIN OGDEN had been with CRABB a different result might have been anticipated. All was bad management, want of experience, and a clear rushing upon a deadly fate.

CRABB entered Cavorca with 54 men. All these were killed except the youngest, said to have been spared by the Mexican commander, GARCIA. The name of the survivor is unknown, but he is said to be a boy of sixteen or seventeen.

The Mexicans at Cavorca were about 800 strong.

Major Don WOOD and Major TOZZER are safe. They were with Capt. OGDEN's party. Col. R. N. WOOD, late Fillmore elector, is among the dead.

San Francisco Markets.

From Coleman's Market Review, May 20.

Our market, with respect to the greater proportion of imported goods, has undergone few changes during the past two weeks, and, in the main has been dull. In some of the leading staples, however, the transactions have been of an unusually important character, and prices materially higher than our previous quotations may be stated to rule at the close. We have, however, to note one exception to this remark, which is in the case of Adamantine Candles; some of the large holders having put their stocks upon the market within the last week, and sold for the best price obtainable, the result has been a decline to as low figures as ever before realized in this market, when the corresponding value on the other side be taken into consideration. The cause of the utter prostration of an article so largely consumed as are Adamantine Candles, and, at the same time, all things considered, one of the best adapted for specular operations, are, briefly, the same of which we have spoken every fortnight for six months past, viz.: an enormous stock and excessive supplies all the time arriving. Hence, when large holders have forced their goods upon the market, buyers could not be found, except at 10 ⅌ cent. less than last quotations at New-York for, be it remembered, that money is worth 2½@3 ⅌ cent. upon the best security, as we write, and parties who have invested in Candles look for nothing more than a fair interest upon their capital within from three to six months, and it is very certain that they will not realize that unless shipments from the East during the Summer months are either greatly diminished or wholly suspended.

During the past fortnight the movement in American Spirits, to which we alluded in our preceding review, was resumed, and operations to a large extent, both here and to arrive, have been consummated. Holders, however, have met the wants of buyers with a good deal of alacrity and without insisting upon prices which had they asked, would have at once brought the movement to a dead halt. For this reason it is that rumored sales, of a character have not been realized, as is usually the case in this market, in prices pushed up precipitately to a point where considerations of stocks would not sustain them.

Shortly after the departure of the last mail, by the arrival of the Archer from Hong Kong, with dates to March 27, we were advised of the loss of two cargoes of Raw Sugars destined for this market, one of which was coming to the Sugar Refinery here. This news, in connection with the fact that three arrivals from China latterly have brought but insignificant additions to stocks, tended to materially improve the prospects for both Raw and Refined Sugars, and buyers at advanced rates have been in the market since.

Provisions have been in moderate and steady demand during the past fortnight, with the exception of Eastern Butter and Cheese, the stocks of both which are, at the moment, and likely to be for some months hence, a per-

TWO WEEKS LATER FROM NEW-GRANADA.

The Dispute with the United States—The American Minister Preparing to Leave—Gen. Mosquera's Proposition for the Protection of the Isthmus—Settlement of the Difficulty with Great Britain—Miscellaneous News.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PANAMA, Wednesday, June 3, 1857.

An extra session of the State Legislature was decreed for the 1st June, but on calling the roll, only six or eight members answered to their names. Four-teen were necessary for a quorum. It appears the Liberal members had no fancy to be driven out again at the point of the bayonet, as they were last September—exiled and their houses searched, as was the case with the two GOCHIAS and the President, Don MARIANO AROSEMENA. In the meantime, there is not a dollar in the treasury to pay the expenses of the Government or to protect the Transit. The sooner the United States assumes the mastership here the better for all concerned.

The Centinela, the Spanish paper here, says it would be a humiliation and an infamy for New-Granada to initiate new negotiations, after she has so peremptorily refused the ultimatum of the United States, and thinks new propositions will come from the United States! From this it may easily be inferred that the Editors are better posted up on the rules of chicken-fighting than they are on the rules and etiquette of diplomacy.

Our dates from Bogota are to the 9th May. The administration of OSPINA remained perfectly dumb on the American question. Mr. BOWLIN writes under date of May 8, that, satisfied that no propositions will be made to him, he shall leave Bogota on the 20th for the United States. The United States sloop-of-war Cyane, it is understood, is at Carthagena, for which port she sailed about ten days since, and may be expected daily with our Minister.

Gen. THOMAS G. MOSQUERA, formerly a merchant or broker in New-York, but now member of the Bogota Senate from Sabanilla, has started some silly proposition in Congress. He wants one thousand men to be sent to Panama, to protect the Isthmus against the Yankees, it is to be presumed. After having lived seven years in the United States, and knowing our strength as he does, his proposition for resistance can only be regarded as a demagogical one, to subserve some political purposes of his own. He also proposes to send forty New-Granadian officers to Costa Rica, to instruct the people of that country in the art of war, so that they may whip the filibusters. This proposition will be considered more stupid than the other when it is known that there is not a single educated military man in New-Granada—and very few, Gen. MOSQUERA included, who knew a ditch from an embankment, or a war-horse from a horse-pistol.

The regular session of Congress having ended on the 1st May, the President immediately convoked an extra session for the 2d, "to take into consideration certain projects of law." It is rumored that OSPINA will ask Congress to give him power to settle the American dispute, but I can trace the report to no reliable source.

The British Mackintosh claim has at last been settled on the terms proposed by Great Britain, save that New-Granada pays $560,000 in paper, instead of cash. Diplomatic intercourse has been resumed.

The Panama Railroad Company have laid down their magnificent bridge over the Chagres River at Barbacoas. It rests on solid stone abutments and piers of beautiful and durable workmanship. The cost exceeds $200,000.

The U. S. steam frigate Wabash remains at Aspinwall. At Panama we have the Independence, St Mary's, and Decatur, and expect the John Adams soon. The officers and men are in general good health. F. W. R.

INTERESTING FROM NICARAGUA.

Further Facts in Regard to the Capitulation at Rivas—Motives that Induced Commander Davis to Intercede for the Filibusters—Has Walker any Friends among the Native Nicaraguans—Walker's Despotism—The Remnant of the Filibusters in Nicaragua—New Presidential Election—Nicaragua to be Occupied by the Four Central American States.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PANAMA, Wednesday, June 3, 1857.

No communication having been allowed by Commodore MERVINE with WALKER and his officers the two days he was on board the St. Marys in this harbor, I could get but few particulars and incidents of the capitulation at Rivas, save the summary of official notes I sent you. I was obliged to go to Aspinwall and take advantage of the few hours when the passengers were getting on board the steamer, in order to procure a copy of HERNINGSEN's statistics, as well as to gather the greater portion of the information I did send you.

Now that WALKER and so many of his officers are among you, I presume your readers, by the time they get this, will be nearly surfeited with tales of filibusterism—nevertheless I am in possession of some facts that may not be in your possession, in regard to the capitulation, and which may not prove uninteresting. I think I said in my last that there could scarcely be a doubt that Commander DAVIS, in his acts at San Juan del Sur, and his mediation at Rivas, acted under authority of the Pierce Administration. HERNINGSEN asserts, in his report to Gen. WALKER after the capitulation, that Commander DAVIS informed him that in what he was doing "he was acting on instructions from his superior officer, from the Commander-in-Chief; that since the last Administration, instructions had been received, which contained nothing to alter the course he intended to pursue, but he preferred I should consider this as unsaid." In a conversation with Commander DAVIS, he flatly denied the truth of these assertions of HERNINGSEN. He says he had no instructions whatever from his Commodore or from Washington, and of course he never could have told anybody he had. He relates the following incidents as having decided his interference at the time, to save the lives of WALKER and his deluded followers.

In the latter part of April, a man by the name o TELLER came on board the St. Mary's, apparently half frightened out of his wits, and threw himself upon a sofa. He said he did not belong to WALKER's force, but had come down to see how he could get himself and wife and child out of the country. On his way to San Juan del Sur, he said he had been chased by a squad of the Allies, and came near being captured. He had not been on board long before General ESTRADA, in command of the force occupying San Juan, sent to Com. DAVIS to say that he had reason to believe TELLER was a spy. Com. D. replied that if proof could be produced to that effect, he would deliver TELLER over to him for punishment. On going on shore Commander DAVIS learned that TELLER had come down with a guide, who reported that they had a secret despatch for somebody, which, TELLER getting frightened, buried on the roadside. The guide went out and brought in the letter. It was without signature, and simply addressed "DEAR MAC"—McDONALD, agent of the Nicaraguan steamers. It was in WALKER's handwriting, and recounted the strait to which he was reduced, completely hemmed in by a numerous enemy, without provisions, and the men daily thinning out by desertion. WALKER prayed McDONALD for God's sake to work some plan by which he could get possession of one of the Lake steamers, or to fix some other way for his escape. Upon reading this missive, Commander DAVIS determined to act at once. In his first interview with HERNINGSEN, the latter commenced by saying that WALKER was perfectly comfortable behind his fortifications—had plenty of men, ammunition and provisions, and could cut his way out of Rivas whenever he should choose. To this Commander DAVIS replied, that if that was the disposition with which he was to be met, he would respectfully take his leave. Whereupon, HERNINGSEN got down from his high horse, and the capitulation was the result.

HERNINGSEN also says in his report that Gen. Digby assured him previous to the capitulation, that he should take possession of WALKER's war-schooner Granada, and in case their assurance, using that language, that induced the capitulation. I do not know whether Gen. D. gave any such assurance or not. But if he did, he acted with great inconsistency—for there was no reason existing on the 20th April why Gen. DAVIS should take possession of the Granada that did not exist in March, when the Commander in his letter to Gen. LAYSON expressly recognized her as belonging to a legitimate party to the revolution in Nicaragua. HERNINGSEN talks nonsense, however, when he says WALKER could and would have cut his way to San Juan and got on board the Granada. WALKER's officers often, in their own quarters, discussed the chances of LOCKRIDGE's joining them, which was their last hope. They had fully made up their minds that in case of any reverse to him to hold an open meeting on the Plaza, and then to inform Gen. WALKER of their full determination to surrender. This I am assured of by an officer of high rank who marched out of Rivas with WALKER on the 1st of May. It is barely possible that out of his two hundred fighting men, one quarter or one-third might have got to San Juan del Sur (where they would have met another force of the allies) but WALKER's men did not love him well enough to lose their lives in a vain attempt to save him—and they knew that by surrendering they would be well treated, and probably sent home.

HERNINGSEN further says that they did not surrender to the Costa Ricans. This is a quibble, but does not amount to much either way. He would do well, however, before insisting upon the point to cast his eye over the fourth article of the agreement of capitulation; in which the following words occur: "Captain DAVIS undertakes to obtain guarantees," etc.

Several of the officers have told me that if they had succeeded in getting a comparatively secure footing in Nicaragua, WALKER would not have been their commander two months thereafter. He had alienated from him almost every man and officer in his force by his cruel and despotic conduct.

Judge WEIR, one of WALKER's civil officers, arrived here in the bark Victor the other day. He says there is much distress among the women and children at San Juan del Sur. There were about thirty women waiting to get away, who were all living at the Pacific Hotel, a house owned by the United States Consul. The Judge says their expenses are paid by the United States—but I presume Costa Rica foots the bill.

General WALKER persists in the great error he has fallen into, that a large portion of the population of Nicaragua are in his favor, and would prefer his rule to any other. HERNINGSEN, in his report to his Commander-in-Chief, on the evacuation of Rivas, sets down the number of native troops in the force at 40. This small number would be proof sufficient that the lower classes did not sympathize with the filibuster cause, admitting that there were 40 native troops in Rivas. But there were not. These forty men were servants, cooks, hostlers, &c., staying upon compulsion. In February last, WALKER had only three natives enrolled in his army—one of them, Capt. SANDOVAL, a cattle thief, was given a commission on account of his experience in that line, and the two others were used as scouts. I saw, while at Rivas, how WALKER obtained even the few natives he had about his camp as servants. One day, driving down to St. George with his Quartermaster-General, that officer rode up to the door of the Alcalde, a native. The Alcalde was engaged in business with two or three Secretaries, but immediately came to the door, bowing most obsequiously. "Where are the five men I ordered you to send me yesterday?" inquired the Quartermaster in a very severe tone. "Your Excellency," replied the Alcalde, "as soon as the people heard of your order they all ran away from the village." "They did—did they? Well, now I want you to understand distinctly that if you do not send me five men by to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, to take care of my mules and horses, I will send a guard down to St. George, and take you and your Secretaries for the service."

As regards his friends among the better classes, I think he could not name half a dozen true ones, in all Central America. The sacking of the churches and the burning of Granada were not calculated to make his cause popular; and certainly the confiscation of nearly all the estates where he held military occupation, made him no friends. His black-mail system, and that of his officers, could not have taught the people to love him. I will give you a specimen of his manner of levying money. On a fine hacienda, not far from Rivas, lived an old man, the owner, named EVA. Col. EVA, his son, was in the service of the Allies at St. George. Señor EVA had two daughters, one about 25 years of age, who lived on the estate, and the other was married to an American gentleman, of New-Orleans, named STANSBURY. Col. BRUNO VON NATH

[illegible] loading with guano, under VIVANCO contracts, at the time VIVANCO's fleet abandoned the Islands. In all, there were 22 ships loading under these contracts. Among them I noticed the American barks Emily Bassett, Pedee and Huntington, and one, two or three American vessels that have changed their flags, all with Chili charters. The guano is estimated to net the Government about $36 the ton register. I know of one case in which VIVANCO sold a party in Valparaiso guano at $8 2 ton register, on the amount of $60,000, for an advance of money to this amount. Besides, this speculator loaded several ships, the tonnage of which he set down at only one-half, and some at only one-third of the real measurement; thus, in fact, getting the guano for from three to four dollars a ton register, or say two to three dollars for the actual ton! As guano brings $35 a ton in the United States, and freight costs only about $10, a very pretty thing will be made out of the $60,000 capital.

A Lima correspondent of the Panama Star, under date of May 12, gives the following important information:

"The Convention have closed their secret session last night on the question of an English and French protectorate of the Chincha Islands. They voted this day, and may have done so at this moment, as it is expected, favorably. If so, the decision may be in time to send to Europe and the United States by this mail."

The Chronicle of Lima, of April 29, has the following:

"We are assured from a respectable source that Lozano & Co., of Lima, hold an obligation signed by the revolutionists, by which this firm are to have 10,000 tons register of guano, free of cost, in compensation for their services, and which is at their disposal whenever they choose to receive it. The same firm have a contract with the revolutionists, in case they triumph, to supply, without limitation, the Western Isles with guano, expressed in such a manner that after the transport to the aforesaid islands the guano, will sell it in countries where it may be most convenient for them. This contract is in the name of Lozano & Sherman, Le Guennan and Garrson & Tappan, of Boston."

The same paper, of May 9, says: "Gen. VIVANCO has issued an order at the Chincha that all the vessels dispatched for the United States shall be consigned to Mr. TRASK, instead of BARNDAY BROTHERS." This letter firm will feel enjoined that they have "saved their bacon" by the downfall of VIVANCO.

Contracts are expected to be brisk in Lima and Callao with the interior, and on orders for the South and Bolivia since the revolution was considered as being finished.

BOLIVIA.

There is nothing of consequence from this Republic, except that the yellow fever, which has been raging in La Paz for several months, has increased in virulence, and is spreading to other districts.

CHILI.

Senor ALVARENGA, formerly Chilian Secretary of Legation to Washington, has, are this, set out on his voyage in the national war-brig Ancud for Costa Rica, where he goes as Minister. The precise object of his mission has not transpired, but it is supposed to agree upon a plan to strengthen the ties between the Spanish-American Republics, in order to stem the tide of filibusterism.

"The ultra-Catholic reaction, more or less felt in all Christian countries," the Mercurio says, "has arrested the opponents of the exaggerated pretensions of the Church in Chili. Discussions in regard to Church abuses are assuming a greater freedom than has ever before been known; religious toleration is openly advocated, and even a separation of Church and State is hinted at."

In the island of Quiloe, the magnificent convent of the missionaries, including the furniture, ornaments and private property of the fathers, was destroyed by fire. The convent was built from private donations, and was endowed by Government. Loss, $250,000.

The secret military trials, for conspiracy against the Government, at Santiago, were not concluded. The public persist in believing the Government is attaching too much importance to a senseless plot.

The Government expedition of Mr. Cox, to explore the Rio Negro, in the hope of discovering an easy interoceanic communication, has failed, it not having been undertaken on a sufficiently large scale.

Don MATIAS CORREO was about to undertake the navigation of the river Manis, by an iron steamer, 120 feet long.

Two prolonged, though not severe, shocks of earthquake were felt at Valparaiso and Santiago on the 27th and 28th April.

Trade continued to be extremely scarce in Chili, so much so, that the most stable merchants find it difficult to make regular payments, and sales are paralyzed by the scarcity.

Flour, which had been dull at $3@3 50 for 200 lbs., went up on the news of the rise of Wheat in the South, and the further news of the high rates in California, to from $3 50 to $3 62½. Holders now ask $11 and $12—stock small. American Drills obtained better prices than in the previous fortnight. Sales were made in unbleached, at 9½c. and 10c.; in whites, at 10½c. and 10¾c.; and in blue, at 12c. the inferior, and 13c. to 13½c. the better class. All the three classes are scarce, and the white is in the hand of a single holder. Woolens, linens and silks are dull of sale—stock sufficient. Carolina Rice, $7 50@8—stock small. Powder, $6 ⅌ quintal. Chilian Guano is worth $14@$15. Peruvian sold at auction for $31; the Emily Bassett sold one cargo for $30. Silver, in bars, $10 50 ⅌ marc, cash. Copper, $32@$32 50. Saltpetre at Iquique, $3 87½@$4 ⅌ Hundred. Hides, $28 50 for first class; $18 50 for second. California Fine, 140,000 feet sold for $41 ⅌ M. There is nothing from the River Plate Provinces or from Australia. F. W. R.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

THE BURDELL ESTATE.

THE DOCTOR'S LETTERS TO DEMIS HUBBARD.

What he Writes of Mrs. Cunningham.

Evidence for the Claimant Commenced.

Further Testimony by the Blood Relatives of Dr. Burdell.

DR. STEPHEN MAIN TESTIFIES AS TO THE DECLARATIONS OF REV. MR. MARVINE, AND AS TO DR. BURDELL'S WHEREABOUTS IN OCTOBER—THE DOCTOR PROVED TO HAVE BEEN IN SARATOGA ON OCT. 31, AND IN BROOKLYN ON THE EVENING OF OCT. 28.

SURROGATE'S COURT—FRIDAY, June 12, 1857.

At the meeting of the Court yesterday morning, Mrs. Burdell took a seat beside her counsel, accompanied by a lady friend, Mrs. Will. As usual, her appearance was a signal for a rush to the doors, but by the aid of two police officers the room was kept tolerably clear. Not being able to gain admittance, the crowd formed about the windows outside, and seemed, from the patience with which they occupied their position, to derive profound satisfaction from even this dim view of the proceedings.

TESTIMONY OF DR. MAIN.

Stephen A. Main, dentist, residing at No. 23 Bond-street, testified that he was acquainted with the late Dr. Burdell for a number of years; was present when Rev. Mr. Marvine was examined at the inquest, at No. 31 Bond-street; he asked the witness if the body had changed; and said he could tell the man he married as soon as he would see him; he spoke of the man's beard being long, down on his breast, about two inches below his cravat; witness asked Mr. Marvine, after he saw the body, if he recognized the Doctor; he made no reply, but shook his head; on one occasion, in the Winter, the Doctor spoke of going to Europe some time in May, and said he expected to be gone somewhere about six months; he had a paper in his hand, and spoke of what his trip would cost him; would not be positive as to the amount mentioned, but think it was under $1,000; he said nothing about having incumbrances; witness's house faces No. 31 Bond-street; could see into the windows of that house from the windows of his, when the blinds were open; not more than about two feet into the room, through the glass; he knew the family in the third-story-front room, at the corner; saw different men there at different times; could not say how frequently; was not positive as to the hours of the day; could not say who they were; could not say that he saw one man there in particular, for he was not accustomed to look into other people's windows; did not recognize any of these men as Dr. Burdell.

Cross-examined—Remembers Mrs. Cunningham for about a year; knew she came there the Doctor told him she was a rich widow; saw the Doctor leave the house with a lady, but did not know her. Witness recollects the case of Warner vs. Griffin, in reference to a patent for composition guns, in the United States Court; Dr. Burdell was there as a witness; recollect that the trial was put down on a preceding day for trial, and postponed; introduced the Doctor to counsel (Judge Dean) on the steps of the Court-house; could not fix the day of the introduction, but recollects the Doctor finding fault with the adjournment, and calling it another "vexation," at the time when he introduced him to counsel; from this circumstance, knows it was on the occasion of the postponement of the trial; it was on the first Sunday of the inquest that witness saw Rev. Mr. Marvine; the house was full, and every one was talking; every one was saying that it was Rekal that Mr. Marvine married; did not hear Mr. Marvine say that there were strong points of resemblance between the body and the man he married; could not fix the time when he had the conversation with the Doctor about going to Europe; did not hear him say anything about having ladies to accompany him.

DR. BURDELL IN SARATOGA ON OCT. 31.

Adam Snyder, residing at Saratoga Springs, and clerk at Congress Hall, testified that he was stopping at the Marvine House, in Saratoga, in October last; knew the late Dr. Burdell, having seen him very frequently at Saratoga; saw him in Saratoga on the 31st of October last; he came there in the evening train; he arrived on Friday, and left in the morning train on Monday; he had more whiskers then than during the Summer, but they were short on the sides of his face; at that time think his whiskers were shorter on the chin than they appeared in the daguerreotype; he did not notice particularly; they were of a lightish brown color, interspersed with gray; the doctor was quick in his speech and quick in motion.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dean.—In Summer, 1855, saw Dr. Burdell at Saratoga with Mrs. Cunningham and her daughter; the entry of these ladies' names in the register was made in Dr. Burdell's handwriting; saw them sitting together at table; did not know of their walking out together. In 1856 Mrs. Cunningham did not stay at the same hotel with Dr. Burdell.

To the Surrogate—When the Doctor came to Saratoga on first of October last, he said he came from the West; he came to drink the water and not for business; when the Doctor came in, witness accosting him said, "Dr. this is late for you to be at Saratoga—where do you hail from?" He said, "I come from the West now," and he added that he thought he would stop at Saratoga for a few days and drink the water before returning to New-York. [Witness fixed the date by producing the leaf one of the Register of the Marvine House, on which was the entry under date of Oct. 31, 1857: "Dr. H. Burdell, New-York, Room 76."]

CORROBORATION OF MRS. WILSON'S TESTIMONY.

Phebe Lapper, a little girl aged 14 years, residing in the village of Herkimer, daughter of Catharine Lipper, testified that she was acquainted with Mrs. Wilson of that place, and had lived with her for three years; was in Brooklyn, at Carroll place, at the house of Mrs. Williams, sister of Mrs. Wilson, last Fall; while there in the Fall they expected Mrs. Wilson there from Herkimer, on a Tuesday morning; she did not arrive on that day, but did on the following Thursday; witness could not fix the week or date; did not remember any one being at Mrs. Williams' the evening Mrs. Wilson was expected, until Dr. Burdell came to the door in the evening; witness let him in about seven and a half o'clock, and he went into the parlor.

Cross-examined—Could not remember the day of the week she left Herkimer to come here; had often let Dr. Burdell in at Mrs. Williams' before, generally on Sunday evenings; could not mention any other particular night that she let the doctor in; remembers this one because it was ironing day; saw the doctor in Herkimer last Winter; thinks it was the night witness and Mrs. Wilson got there from here; they got there in the morning, said the doctor in the evening; Miss Brown and Demis Hubbard were there on that evening.

HANNAH DENISON'S TESTIMONY.

Miss Hannah Denison, a young lady of 14 years, residing with her father, Mr. Theodore Denison, in Jersey City, testified that she lived with Mrs. Williams, in Brooklyn, last Fall; lived with her from the time she was three years old until she was twelve; then left her a year and returned, and staid there until last February; remembered Mrs. Wilson being expected there from Herkimer, last Fall; she was expected to arrive on Tuesday morning; she did not arrive until Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock; witness was in the house when she arrived; it was after dinner; Mrs. Wilson said her husband would like to come, but he wanted to vote; she had been expected on the Saturday preceding the first of October, which was witness's birth-day; it was Mrs. Wilson's birth-day too; they were to have had company that evening, if she arrived; on the Tuesday evening when she was expected, witness was in the basement; Dr. Burdell came there that evening, and Phoebe let him in; witness saw him in the parlor; he staid about three-quarters of an hour; he came after supper; it could not have been an hour, for he never staid an hour; Mrs. Williams came down stairs after the Doctor went, and said that the Doctor said Mrs. Wilson was not ready to start, and could not come until Thursday.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dean.—Last came to live with Mrs. Williams in the Spring of 1855; did not know the month; had lived there nine or ten years without leaving; could not say when she left; returned there in the Spring of 1855, and staid until last February; last time she saw Dr. Burdell alive was the day after New-Year's, at her father's store, in Cortlandt-street; was at Mrs. Williams' the Sunday before his death; did not remember that he brought any daguerreotype there that day, or that he was there that day or evening; never heard he was there the Sunday before his death; witness was home all day on that Sunday, and knows he was not there that day; was there on the day of his death, all day, and the Doctor was not over there that day; saw the Doctor at Mrs. Williams' after the 28th of October, some time when Mrs. Wilson was there; thinks it was on a Tuesday, for it was ironing day; within a day or two after the Doctor's death, Mrs. Williams mentioned that the Doctor was there on the Tuesday evening in October, and that Mrs. Wilson came on the Thursday after, and she asked witness if she remembered it.

TESTIMONY OF MRS. WILLIAMS.

Lucy Ann Williams, widow, residing in Carroll-place, Brooklyn, testified that she was a cousin of the late Dr. Burdell; Mrs. Wilson, her sister, came from Herkimer to visit her on a Thursday afternoon, in the last Week of October, 1856; thinks it was the 29th or 30th of October; had expected her on the Saturday morning previous; received a letter on that day saying she would not be able to come that day, but would on the Tuesday following; she did not come on that Tuesday; the Saturday she expected her was her adopted daughter's birth-day, and her sister's birthday also, the 25th of October; was very anxious that her sister should arrive then, for she had business with her on the 1st of November, and is sure it was the last week in October; Dr. Burdell came on the Tuesday evening, when she expected her sister, and said that he had been to Herkimer, had seen her sister, and she could not come that day; he said he had just returned that morning, and that he had gone up there the Friday or Saturday previous; I think he said he came by the boat; he said he had seen my sister, and had gone to church with her on Sunday; he said they were making a great ado about the elections in Herkimer, raising a liberty pole there.

Cross-Examined by Judge Dean.—Dr. Burdell was in the habit of visiting witness once a week, or in two weeks; usually in the evening after tea; he had been there the Sunday before going to Herkimer; he next came on the Tuesday evening, and on the Thursday evening Mrs. Wilson came; thinks he was there also on the next Sunday; did not recollect seeing him again until the evening before her sister went to the country; he was then talking of going to Herkimer again, and said he thought he would meet Mrs. Wilson at the boat; he spoke of bringing Demis Hubbard down to New-York, to spend the Winter with his sister, Mrs. Louis Burdell; thinks he was at witness' house the last time a day or two before Christmas; that witness saw him; Mrs. Louis Burdell told witness that he was at her house the Sunday before his death, but she was in Newark and did not see him; he was not at her house the day of his death; witness was at the inquest the first Monday after the Doctor's death; the Coroner did not ask her any questions as to the Doctor being at her house on Tuesday, October 28; in February, 1856, Mrs. Wilson came to live with witness, because her husband was insane for a few months; she wrote a letter she received from her sister on Saturday, October 25, has been torn, one half only remaining; that she believed to be the first half; first became acquainted with Mrs. Cunningham in August, 1855; met her at the Doctor's office; the Doctor brought her to her house in October or September of that year, in the afternoon; she came perhaps ten or twelve times, altogether, after that, not always in company with the Doctor, but generally; she had been there of evenings with the Doctor; witness met her two or three times at Mrs. Meers' receptions, and at a party at Mrs. Fraser's; met her there in company with the Doctor; had not seen Mrs. Cunningham but once since February, 1856, except once in September; did not visit her since February, 1856; Mrs. Cunningham introduced to the witness Mr. Vail, member of Congress for New-Jersey, about the 1st of October, 1855; the Doctor had his hair and whiskers dyed; commenced doing so about a year or a year and a half ago; on one occasion Mrs. Cunningham dyed his hair for him; witness noticed his hair, and the Doctor told her Mrs. Cunningham had dyed it for him.

To the Surrogate—On the Tuesday evening (Oct. 28) when the Doctor visited witness, he told her that he wished Mrs. Wilson to take the house; that he had been greatly deceived in Mrs. Cunningham; that she had given him a great deal of trouble, and he should get her out of the house if he had to pay her for going. In the last interview witness had with him, he said he had been sued for breach of promise by Mrs. Cunningham; witness asked him if he had ever promised to marry her; he said he had not—that it was all a scheme to get money out of him; he said he was going to have her taken up for stealing a note, and she was glad to settle the matter; he spoke of how he was deceived in Mrs. Cunningham; he spoke in very decided terms about her; said she either listened at the keyhole herself, or had some one there constantly; that she watched him all the time; that he had pulled Helen down from the bath-room window, where she had been listening; to witness's questions he said, "Why, Mrs. Williams, you have no idea what kind of a woman she is—she is a perfect fiend—she would dirk a man in the street as soon as not—that she had made him a great deal of trouble;" he said he had not been out with her for a long time, and neither eat nor drank in the house; he said, in relation to marrying Mrs. Cunningham, that she had given up all idea of getting him; that she had a lover in the house; he said she would shortly be married, and added "in fact I do not know but she is married;" he mentioned his name, but I do not recollect names well; he said he was a man 45 or 48 years old, and he believed was in pretty good business; in October he said he should get her out of the house, and that she had promised to go; he said nothing about suits then, and did not until the last interview.

Cross-examined by Judge Dean.—Had heard of the suits before this from her cousin, Mr. Jesse H. Cunningham; witness first spoke to the Doctor about them, putting the question directly to him if it was a fact that Mrs. Cunningham had sued him; said it was; he did not state when they were settled; up to June, 1856, had heard the Doctor speak well of Mrs. Cunningham; he said she was a very smart woman, and that she told him she was worth $100,000 in Brooklyn; he said afterwards that he thought that was not true; witness had no difficulty with Mrs. Cunningham; Mrs. Cunningham told witness that Mr. Vail had given her an anonymous letter; witness wrote to Mr. Vail to inquire if it was so, and Mr. Vail replied that he had not shown her any such letter nor told her the contents of it; that he had received such a letter, but had never shown it to any one; witness then understood where the plot originated; Mr. Vail was a widower, and witness was corresponding with him; after this witness dropped Mrs. Cunningham's acquaintance, because she felt she had been deceived in her; this was prior to the time she had heard the Doctor speak disparagingly of Mrs. Cunningham.

Q.—Did you advise the Doctor to marry Mrs. Cunningham, the first year of your acquaintance? A.—Mrs. Cunningham asked me to use my influence with the Doctor to get him to marry her, and on one occasion left me in the office to ask the Doctor; I asked the Doctor if he intended to marry her, and he said he did not, and never had.

Q.—Did she promise you, if you would use your influence for her with the Doctor, that she would use her influence for you in another quarter? A.—She said something of the kind, but I told her I would not have any such understanding with her; this weakened my confidence in Mrs. Cunningham a great deal; in December, the Doctor said, on our last interview, that Mrs. Cunningham was a dangerous woman—that he was afraid of her—that she was plotting then—that she had got round his office-boy, and now she was getting round his lawyer; he said he had given up Brady, and the lawyer he now had was Clinton—[laughter]—that he was a very smart young man, [renewed laughter,] but that she had got into his good graces; he said she had a young lawyer in the house for four or five weeks, writing—that it was to injure him; he further said that when she found he would not marry her, she wanted to get his money, and that was her reason for bringing the suits.

Mr. Perry C. Smith, of No. 1,[illegible] Broadway, clerk in the "People's Line of Steamboats" office, testified that the steamboat New World left Albany on the 24th of October, 1856, and reached here at twenty minutes past two o'clock P. M. on the 30th; she was delayed by being aground at Castleton; the name of "Wilson" appears twice in the register of the ladies' cabin for that trip.

Henry L. Sizer[illegible], aged 21 years, residing in Fifty-seventh-street, testified that he was at No. 31 Bond-street during the inquest, when Rev. Mr. Marvine was there; Mr. Marvine said then that he could not identify the body of Dr. Burdell as that of the man he married; that, judging from the size of the corpse, he did not think the man he married was as large as Dr. Burdell; he said the man he married for Mrs. Cunningham had large, heavy whiskers, which he thought were false.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clinton.—This was the same time that Mr. Johnstone (examined yesterday) was present; he may have heard some of the conversation I did not, and I may have heard some he did not; I judge it was the first week of the inquest; I addressed no questions to Mr. Marvine; only heard the conversation; he spoke to Mr. Johnstone and an elderly gentleman; Mr. Johnstone asked me if he could recognize the body as it lay, and he said there was a discoloration about the cheek, which might make a difference; I think he had short whiskers, and I do not recollect whether he had any beard; I think he had; I do not recollect whether he had a moustache; cannot recollect the color of his hair.

WHO WILL CALL DR. BLAISDELL?

Mr. Tilden said he wanted to identify a larger daguerreotype, than that produced, of Dr. Burdell.

Judge Dean—Is that the one you got from Dr. Blaisdell?

Mr. Tilden—Yes.

Judge Dean—Then call him to prove it.

Mr. Tilden—Do you call him as your witness?

Judge Dean—No, we certainly will not. You have had him here, and can call him.

Mr. Tilden declined, and so Dr. Blaisdell seemed to be dropped by both parties.

Counsel for the contestants here rested, reserving the right to examine the Public Administrator as to state of Dr. Burdell's papers; to identify the daguerreotype; to identify certain letters as in the handwriting of Dr. Burdell; and to examine Recorder Smith, in regard to the testimony of Augusta Cunningham at the inquest.

The following are the letters put in evidence by counsel for the contestants:

DR. BURDELL'S LETTERS TO DEMIS HUBBARD, AND WHAT HE WRITES OF MRS. CUNNINGHAM AND SPICER.

NO. 31 BOND-STREET, NEW-YORK, Oct. 10, 1856.

COUSIN DEMIS: I received your letter two days since. You say you are ready to come to New-York whenever I say the word. Mrs Cunningham is about to take some steps to injure me, I think. Hold yourself in readiness to come to this City at a moment's warning. Perhaps I may want you to return, but if things go on quietly you had probably better stay where you are.

Spicer came down here and quarreled with me, and it is my impression that she and him have some way joined to injure me. Mrs C. has slandered you and Lucy of the worst kind, and Spicer joined in slandering you.

If I do not go out to Sackett's Harbor in a few days I will send you some money. I am in great haste.

Yours, &c HARVEY BURDELL.

31 BOND-STREET, NEW-YORK, Oct. 15, 1856.

COUSIN DEMIS: I wrote to you a few days since in great haste. I stated that if I did not go out to Sackett's Harbor, I would write in a short time, and send you some money. My rents at the Port have not been paid yet this quarter, which was due the first of this month, but Rehl's, which is due and will probably be paid in a few days, and Newman's property at the Port has increased in value considerably.

Our Bank is now in the most favorable condition. I am a director, and have a good deal to say about matters. I send you fifteen dollars, which is all that I can spare at present.

The trouble I expected with Mrs. Cunningham may not take place, in which case you had better stay where you are for the present. I shall go out to Sackett's Harbor this Fall or the fore part of Winter. Spicer took your furs and shawl out to you when he left here. I really pitied poor Spicer, for when he got here he was like a "cat in a strange garret." He thought, as I had money and lived in good style, I ought to divide with him. He looked so much like an old scarecrow in a cornfield that he actually frightened my customers; and because I scolded a little at him, (something as I used to scold you,) he got into a terrible passion and threatened all kinds of things; and as I and Mrs. C. were bad friends, he joined her and tried to make a time of it. But Spicer's personal appearance was so much against him that Mrs. C. did not think proper to take him under her wing.

As you and Mrs. C. were not on good terms, he induced her in abusing you, but what he said had no more effect on me than the braying of an old worn-out jackass. I was disappointed in poor old daddy long-legs Spicer.

They say he has a bad name wherever he has lived. He is, according to his own admission, a very bad man among women, and no woman can be seen with him without being spoken to by his friends say; but the poor old fool is not worth noticing.

Write as soon as you get this letter. Give my respects to all the folks at S. Harbor; also, to your sister Julia, and the big and little daughters.

I am in excellent health and hope you are the same. Excuse the small amount I send you.

In great haste, yours, &c., respectfully,
HARVEY BURDELL.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Nov. 1, 1856.

COUSIN DEMIS: I left New-York yesterday for this place to stay over Sunday, and expect to return on Monday morning.

I received your last letter acknowledging the receipt of the money I sent you. I think that I should not have had any trouble with Mrs. Cunningham if it had not been for Spicer, who joined her in her attempt to injure me. I was much disappointed in Spicer. But all trouble is now at an end I think. She is a designing, scheming, and artful woman. All her designs were to get me to marry her; but the old hag has failed and damned her old soul to hell. I would sooner marry an old toad than to marry such a thing as she is. Sam. Walker says, "beware of the vidders," and I think he was right.

You may expect me out at Sackett's Harbor some time this Fall or Winter.

Dinner is now ready and I must close with wishing you all well and happy.

In haste, yours &c.
HARVEY BURDELL.

P. S.—I send you a paper at the same time I send the letter.

NO. 31 BOND-STREET, NEW-YORK, Nov. 13, 1856.

COUSIN DEMIS: I wrote to you last from Saratoga. I then stated that I might go out to Sackett's Harbor in a short time, but I have concluded not to leave the City at present. There is no trouble now between me and Mrs. Cunningham. I think Mrs. C. will trouble me no more disturbance, and that she will be quiet and leave No. 31 Bond-street as soon as she can with a good grace.

If you would like to come to this City, I have no objections, but it would not be proper to come to No. 31 Bond-street, as long as the old "she devil" stays here—that is to live here. If you are well situated at Sackett's it may be the most advisable to stay there. Mary and Lucy would like to have you stay with them at Brooklyn, if Lucy concludes to keep her house open this Winter, otherwise Mary will live at Herkimer, where she would like to have you stay with her. Here are the facts: I shall certainly get rid of Mrs. Cunningham by Spring, and I may get rid of her now very soon, and when this monstrous b—h of Hell leaves I would like to have you come at once to New-York. I want to see you as soon as I can get her out of my house I shall, and may the old devil take her to himself in the infernal regions

I will send you some more money in a short time, as I am in arrears of what is due to you from Elizabeth Port.

My respects to all. Write on the receipt of this.

In haste, yours, &c.,
HARVEY BURDELL.

P. S.—Tell me about Spicer—whether he has left S. Harbor or not.

NO. 31 BOND-STREET, NEW-YORK, Nov. 19, 1856.

COUSIN DEMIS: I have finally concluded that you had better come down to this City. My proposition is this: for you to start from Sackett's Saturday morning, the 29th day of November, and go directly to Herkimer, where I will meet you in the afternoon or evening of the same day. I have made arrangements with Mary, at Herkimer, for you to stop there, the same place, Anni Denison's late residence.

I write early so that I can get an answer before I leave here for Herkimer. If you had rather stay where you are this Winter, you can say so in your answer to this. Mrs. C. has not left No. 31, and, for the present, after you get back here, you can stop with Lucy, or at the Graham's, who would be delighted to have you with them, (as a boarder, and not as a visitor.) Your income from the Port is exceedingly yours.

I am very well, and hope you are the same. Respects to all. I will send you a $10 bill on the coming Saturday or Monday, out of which pay your fare to Herkimer. I think Mrs. C. opened one of your letters, therefore direct to Dr. A. T. Smith, No. 31 Bond street, on the outside envelope; inside of this direct to me properly sealed. Smith works for me. He will get the letter, open it, and find one inside sealed to me, which he will hand to me, and all will be right. Do not neglect this.

I will send you the $10 any way, whether you conclude to come or not. In great haste, yours, &c.
HARVEY BURDELL.

I send you the Sunday Dispatch.

EVIDENCE FOR THE CLAIMANTS.

After the recess, Rev. Dr. Snodgrass was the first witness called for the claimants. Had been a minister of the Presbyterian Church for thirty years and upwards; had been acquainted with Mrs. Burdell since '24 or '25. Witness, in reply to a question of Mr. Clinton, said that in his opinion his wife was not fit to give evidence here now, on account of ill health. On 25th of October last exchanged pulpits with Rev. Mr. Marvine; have a memorandum of the fact; returned to Goshen on the next Tuesday; was informed by his family that Mrs. Cunningham had been to his house in Goshen and spent Sunday, returning on Monday. [Counsel on the opposite side objected to this part of the evidence as hearsay.] Was introduced to Dr. Burdell by Mrs. Cunningham; saw them together on two or three occasions; nothing especially peculiar in the demeanor of Dr. B. towards Mrs. C.; it seemed to be appropriate under the circumstances; saw nothing to savor of unkindness.

To the Surrogate—Was introduced to Dr. Burdell on the 13th, 14th and 15th of December last; his visit at No. 31 Bond-street lasted from Saturday morning to Monday evening or Tuesday morning.

To Mr. Tilden—Knew Dr. Burdell previously, but had not spoken to him; witness and Mrs. Snodgrass went to Savannah about the 20th of November; called at No. 31 Bond-street on their return; while there, occupied the third story front room; never visited in that house at any other time; did not know whether Mrs. Snodgrass had; staid at a friend's house in Eighth-street at the time of preaching for Rev. Mr. Marvine; had three sons living in New-York; none of them kept house at that time.

To Mr. Clinton—Had preached in this City fourteen years; was not aware that Mrs. Cunningham knew where he was stopping when he exchanged with Mr. Marvine; Miss Helen Cunningham was at witness' house in Goshen about the 1st of January; staid two or three days; Mrs. Cunningham became a member of his Church in January, 1846; was acquainted with her former husband.

To Mr. Tilden—Knew Mr. Cunningham in 1845, when his family took a pew in witness' Church.

Mr. Clinton now desired counsel for contestants to produce their other witness, as the scope and plan of the defence would depend upon where the case for contestants was rested.

The witness not appearing, Mr. Clinton called

Frederic A. Potter, a clerk, residing at No. 245 Broome-street—Knew Mr. Grant who was on the stand the day before; had known him in Buffalo and elsewhere; would not believe him under oath; had a bad reputation for veracity; was considered a perfect liar by those who knew him.

To Mr. Edwards—Knew him in 1847, '48, '49, 50, and '51; was in a lawyer's office during most of that time; was in the Post-office in 1850; then went to Grant's store as a book keeper; he did not turn witness away; Grant was then in the carpet business; was acquainted with Mr. Grant before 1851; boarded with him in '49; witness is an Englishman by birth; is a printer by trade; has not done any business in the last year and a half, with the exception of a month or six weeks; had not met Mr. Grant since 1851; heard a particular friend of his and Grant's, a Mr. Joseph Forsyth, say that Grant had tried to swindle him; also heard a Mr. Bruce talk about him; Bruce is a foreman in Holmes & Co.'s sash and blind making establishment in this City; when witness came to New-York in 1851, he went to New Jersey, and bought a farm in Essex County; has since sold it to his brother-in-law; read Mr. Grant's testimony of the previous day in the paper, and came to testify of his own accord.

To Mr. Clinton—Had heard something of Mr. Grant's character before he went to live with him; left because he found him worse than he thought.

The Surrogate here remarked that as the counsel for contestants had not yet produced their witness, they must now rest and bring forward any additional testimony this morning.

Elias O. Taylor, of No. 29 Hester-street, a tailor, next called by Mr. Clinton, was a brother of Eli Taylor, who keeps the hotel at Herkimer; his brother came here on the 25th of October last; went with him to Greenwood on the 27th; went to visit the grave of his daughter, who died on the 3d; saw Dr. Burdell the same week that his brother left.

To Mr. Tilden—His brother left on Tuesday to take the boat to go home; that was towards evening.

Mr. Thomas Picton, discount clerk of the Artisan's Bank, was the next witness called: Dr. Burdell was a Director of the Bank from its opening to the day of his murder, from the 3d of September last; Alexander Fraser was Vice-President of the Bank up to the 24th or 25th of October; at the meeting of the Directors when Mr. Fraser's resignation was presented, Dr. Burdell was present; knew the fact from the memorandum on the offering book; next saw Dr. Burdell on the 28th; saw him come to the Board at 9¾ o'clock, and leave when it adjourned; had a conversation with him on the 28th; declined saying what it was; had conversed with him about going to Europe; told him that a gentleman of his wealth should travel abroad; gave him some information about traveling; witness had lived abroad several years; this conversation was, he thought, in December.

To Mr. Edwards—Had not been a banker's clerk before going to the Artisan's Bank; previous to that was one of the editors of the New-York Sunday Mercury; had been editor of Sunday Era, New-York Sackett, and True American; was a relative of Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Picton, of the English Army, who fell at Waterloo; had had the honor, or dishonor, of being a counselor-at-law, practicing in the Supreme Court of the State of New-York; has been a writer for the Spirit of the Times; has contributed to the NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES, Express and London Times; was not in the habit of being present when the Bank Directors were in session; they did not sit as late as twelve o'clock.

To Judge Dean—Dr. Burdell said he proposed going to Europe in June; said he would go in company, or have a companion along.

John Smith, of No. 54 Great Jones-street, watchmaker, was next called: In the Fall of 1856 sold a bedstead bookcase to J. J. Eckel; had been exhibited in Crystal Palace prior to that; delivered it to him on the 28th of October; (bill shown, dated 28th, which witness identified;) it was paid by a check handed to him by Dr. Burdell; the check was signed by Mr. Eckel, and drawn on the Market Bank; the check was paid; it was between five and six o'clock in the afternoon when he delivered the bedstead; when they were getting it in Dr. Burdell came to the door and told them to be very careful about striking the wall; that he should charge him $5 for every knock the wall received; Dr. Burdell helped put it up; witness was there about twenty minutes to half an hour; it was put up in the small room; Mrs. Burdell and one or two of her daughters were there; they examined it after it was put up; had known Dr. Burdell for some time; had been in his house several times before; his whiskers were black; at that time; they came down about to his cravat; were pretty heavy round the side, and bushy; the door leading to the room adjoining that where the bed was put up was not open; there was a settee before it; the gas was lighted about the time the bed was put up; Mr. Douglass engaged the bedstead for Mr. Eckel; after the bed was put up Dr. Burdell went into the front room and soon came out with the check. Witness here introduced a very shrewd puff of his cabinet manufacture.

To Mr. Tilden—Was positive the bill was not made the day before; is always particular when he makes out bills to give the date the same day as when delivered; remembered looking at his clock to determine the day of the month; the Doctor had dark clothes on that day; had known Mrs. Cunningham for ten or twelve years; got acquainted with her through his wife; Mrs. C. had been at his house; came on one occasion to see about taking a room; that was two or three years ago; Dr. Burdell, when witness saw him on the 28th of October, was very nicely dressed; thought his clothes were black; Mr. Eckel came in just as witness was going out; Mr. Eckel was introduced to him in the last of October, at the Crystal Palace; Eckel was in company of a niece of his, a daughter of Mrs. Van Ness; thought it must have been about a quarter to six o'clock when he left Dr. Burdell's house; remembered the hour more particularly, because he had made an appointment to be there at five o'clock; Miss Augusta, he thought, had on a dark silk dress; neither her nor her mother seemed to be more than ordinarily dressed; Mrs. Van Ness' business is dress-making.

To the Surrogate—Saw Dr. Burdell at his house two or three times before the 28th of October; called at such times to see Mrs. Burdell about making the bookcase.

Wesley W. Hill, Superintendent of the La Farge Hotel, was next sworn.—Dr. Burdell boarded at the hotel last Fall; only took meals; commenced, according to register, on the 23d of September, 1856; left on the 31st of October, or rather that was the time he paid his bill; that appears by transient cash-book; he returned on the 16th of November, according to the register; Mr. and Mrs. Fraser went there to the La Farge to board about the same time; the Doctor was very regular at his meals.

To Mr. Tilden—Dr. Burdell left on the 28th of November; came back again on the 2d of December, and finally left on the 30th of December.

Dr. Walter B. Roberts, dentist, of No. 55 Bond-street, was the next witness: Knew Dr. Burdell; had been acquainted with him for three years last April; had done a great deal of business with him in the last three years; were in the habit of mutually indorsing notes; on 17th of October indorsed a note for $7,000 for Dr. Burdell; saw Dr. B. nearly every day from the 17th to the 31st, when he went to the country; on the 18th or 19th of October had a conversation with him in relation to the settlement of the breach of promise suits; the Doctor was in the habit of coming into witness' office in the morning, and on the 24th told him that Mr. Fraser had that day resigned his office in the Artisan's Bank; Dr. Burdell told witness that he was going to the bank on Monday or Tuesday morning to try to get resolutions passed complimentary to Mr. Fraser; he was in the habit of leaving information when he went out of town; he said he was going to Herkimer to get some money to meet the note of $7,000, coming due on the 19th of December; this note was given in payment of stock of the Artisan's Bank; the Doctor was not absent from the City between the 24th and 28th of October to his knowledge; became acquainted with Mrs. Burdell on the 19th of August, 1855, at Saratoga, where he was introduced to her by the Doctor; Dr. Burdell at this time spoke very highly of Mrs. C., and represented her as worth $75,000 or $100,000.

At this point there was a great pressure of the crowd about the open windows, and the Surrogate said he would adjourn then, and at the next session have deputy sheriffs enough to keep the crowd back. It was 6½ o'clock when the Court adjourned.

United States Court of Claims.

Before Hon. Justices Blackford and Scarburgh.

UNITED STATES STATUTES OF LIMITATION, SO CALLED—THEIR EFFECT AS TO CLAIMS FOR OFFICERS' "HALF-PAY FOR LIFE."

Robert H. Gray, Administrator, &c., vs. The United States.—(On argument.)—This was a claim, by an administrator, for the half-pay for life of Francis Gray, a lieutenant of infantry in the Virginia Continental line, during the Revolution, who served through the war, and died in 1827. Lieutenant Gray became entitled to half-pay under the resolution of Oct. 21, 1780, which carries interest at 6 per cent., according to the decision in Baird vs. The United States, in this Court.

As no evidence was available to show the presentation of this claim under any of the resolutions or acts of Congress, called acts of limitation, it was assumed to come within the decision, quite recent, reported a few days since in the Trans.) of the Court in Chamberlin et al., vs. The United States, and, therefore, to be barred and precluded from allowance.

The acts and resolutions in question are as follows: 1. The Resolution of March 17, 1785, (Journals of Congress, vol. 4 p. 483,) which required "all Rivers, and went to New-Orleans together, and staid there two or three days, and stopped at the St. Charles Hotel.

Mr. Adams was then recalled for cross-examination through an interpreter.

I have business with Africa—trade in the products of Africa; have no interest in any vessel; but am shareholder of the Bilsey; I have been in business here for about a year; it does not require any establishment here; I pay commission to those who buy and sell for me—deal with Figueiras, Zulo & Co.; cause have from Lisbon as a passenger; have crossed the Atlantic several times; have been in Brazil at Pernambuco; my father was a captain; I was very young then; I have been on the Coast of Africa; was there in 1851; never have been a clerk of Figueiras, nor of D'Abranches; have been expecting from Lisbon to Africa four vessels; never have been in New-Orleans per in Cuba; don't understand about selling a vessel; Figueiras, Zulo & Co. were my agents to buy the cargo; paid for it part cash and part credit; about ten thousand dollars on credit; the whole cargo cost nineteen thousand dollars; the credit is nearly a year; I saw Mr. Zulo in Africa, at Ambriz, I think; I saw him two or three times.

Examined—I have about eight hundred tons of cargo waiting for me on the Coast.

The evidence was here closed on both sides and the Court adjourned till Monday for the summing up.

THE THOMAS LIBEL SUIT.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Hon. Judge Clerke.

Alonzo Underhill vs. Henry J. Raymond et al.—The facts in this case were published in full some days since in the TIMES. This morning Judge CLERKE rendered his decision, denying the motion to strike out certain parts of the complaint. We give the following short abstract of the opinion:

CLERKE, J.—This is an action for an alleged libel published in the DAILY TIMES, of which the defendants are the proprietors. The defendants move to have certain passages struck out of the complaint, on the ground that they consist of innuendoes not properly framed, and not supported by the published article containing the supposed defamatory matter.

The defendants' counsel refers to authorities, which he maintains are irreconcilable, on the subject of innuendoes in a complaint in this description of action; some of these authorities, he insists, deciding that an answer taking issue on an innuendo is bad; while others decide that the truth or falsehood can be determined by the jury, and that, therefore, an answer taking issue on it is proper. To avoid the perplexity and danger in their defence, which, they suppose, conflicting decisions occasion, the defendants ask, either to be relieved from the necessity of answering the six passages in the complaint, by having them struck out, or, if they should answer them, that they may do so under the sanction of the Court.

On the first glance, the decisions, to which the counsel for the defendants refers, appear to be inconsistent; but it will be found, I think, in carefully considering these decisions, that their apparent disagreement arises from some want of perspicuity in speaking of the nature and purpose of innuendoes, and from confounding them with what are, in reality, only propositions, affirming the meaning of the supposed defamatory matter.

An action for spoken or written defamation is somewhat sui generis; and it is not always easy to distinguish between what should, on the trial, be decided by the Court and what should be left to the jury.

When a publication is so indirect and ambiguous in its terms, as that its libelous tendency is not apparent on its face, extrinsic circumstances must be averred, and the connection pointed out by an innuendo.

The office of the innuendo is to explain the application of the words, employed in the offensive publication, by connecting them with the intrinsic circumstances previously set forth in the inducement. This is strictly its only purpose. The design of the innuendo is well illustrated by the familiar example, (4 Co. R. 18,) taken from an old case, where the libelous words were, "he has burnt my barn," with the innuendo, "meaning a barn with corn." An innuendo there was necessary, because, burning a barn, at the time the action in that case was commenced, was not a felony; but it was held to have been improperly employed as it was not supported by introductory facts. If it had been averred, by way of inducement, that the defendant had a barn full of corn, and that in a conversation respecting that barn the words were uttered, the innuendo would have been good; and, by its connecting the libel with the inducement the sense would have been complete. This rule, requiring the preliminary statement of extrinsic facts to support an innuendo, prevents obscurity and confusion, and is as indispensable now as under our former system except for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose,—it being sufficient for this purpose to state generally that the same was published "of and concerning the plaintiff"—(section 244 of the code)—but, where the words do not convey a direct slanderous imputation, it is still necessary to state extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the defamatory tendency of the words themselves—as in the case from Coke, to which I have referred.

I repeat, then, that the office of an innuendo is to connect the published words with persons, or facts, previously stated, and being merely explanatory, cannot enlarge the sense of words, or supply or alter them, where they are deficient. Any innuendo, therefore, in the innuendo, such as that it is not supported by the preliminary extrinsic facts, or that it enlarges their meaning, or alters them, or substitutes other words in their place, is a defective statement of the case, on the face of the pleading, and, under the old system, could be taken advantage of by a special demurrer; under the Code, as demurrers to complaints are abolished as a remedy for any formal defect, except for the improper joinder of causes of action, it can, I presume, be taken advantage of only by motion—as the defendants have endeavored to do in the present instance.

But are the passages in the complaint, to which the defendants take objection, innuendoes in the proper sense of the term? Nothing is more certain now than that it is the province of the jury to determine the meaning of the libel;—it is merely the duty of the Court to define what constitutes it, referring to the jury the consideration of the particular publication, and allege that it falls within that definition or not. If this is so, assuming the allegations in the complaint that the publication implied certain crimes to the plaintiff—in other words, asserting the meaning of the words complained of—is only asserting a fact, the truth or falsehood of which the jury have to decide. The passages which the defendants move to have stricken out are obviously not inserted for the purpose of explaining extrinsic facts, previously set forth in an inducement, or for the purpose of connecting the offensive words with those facts. This would be a question of form exclusively for the consideration of the court, but they are an assevoration of the in part of the publication itself, which, if the plaintiff is right, constitutes the injury for which he demands redress. The passages there sought to be stricken out, present the precise points upon which the jury are to pass. In short, although bearing the resemblance of innuendoes, they are allegations of issuable facts founded, according to the theory of the plaintiff, upon the matter contained in the published article set forth in the complaint.

Motion denied without costs.

Denimy Convicted and Sentenced.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

Yesterday was the third day of Deniny's second trial. The Court room was densely crowded, the result being anxiously looked for. Mr. Busteed commenced his closing remarks at 11½ o'clock, and spoke till 3 P. M. He made an effective appeal on his client's behalf, but claimed that the prosecution against him was got up because he was, to use Mr. B.'s words, "one of that tainted class—known as Irishmen." He was very severe in his denunciation of the witnesses for the prosecution, and the Court itself, by inuendo, came in for a share of his sarcasm and acerbity. The points where the evidence for the prosecution seemed to fail were mercilessly exposed, and every pimple of testimony that could be brought to bear in behalf of the prisoner, was enlarged to the dimensions of a cloud-capped mountain. Deniny did not lose his case for lack of an energetic counsel.

The District Attorney replied temperately but emphatically. He briefly reviewed the evidence, and showed that the prisoner, and the prisoner alone, had the motive and ability to commit the crime.

Late in the afternoon the Recorder began his charge, the Court and Jury having taken no recess. His Honor commenced by alluding to the great importance of the case. The life of a human being was at stake. They (the Jury) were supposed to be entirely unprejudiced and unbiased, except so far as they might hope that the party charged before them with crime might be innocent; and until by the force of the testimony placed before them, they were compelled to abandon that view, that hope should control them. The Court was responsible for the law of the case—the Jury for the facts. If any opinion should escape from the Court relative to facts, it should not be noticed by the Jury. In the former indictment found against the prisoner, since set aside by another action of the Grand Jury, there had been a count charging him with an attempt to defraud the Bowery Fire Insurance Company, but this charge did not appear in the new indictment, now under their consideration, in which the prisoner was only charged with setting fire to an uninhabited dwelling-house. It was therefore unnecessary for them to notice anything that has taken place in the course of the trial having reference to the Bowery Fire Insurance Company. They must simply confine themselves to the fact that it was a dwelling-house. And the questions for them to consider were: Was it a dwelling-house? Was it set on fire in the night time? Did the prisoner set it on fire? If these questions were proved in the affirmative, then they must find him guilty or Arson in the first degree. If they found that the premises were not on fire by the prisoner, being an inhabited dwelling-house, but not in the night time, then it would be Arson in the second degree. Again, if being so set on fire in the night time, the wood-work were not burned, but merely blistered, that would not be such burning as in law would justify a verdict of Arson in the first degree, but only of an attempt at Arson in the first degree.

In all cases where crime is charged, it is necessary that some motive should exist. Having commenced a motive, the next thing was to see if the person on whom circumstances rested had opportunities to commit the crime. The evidence in this case, relied on by the prosecution, is that the prisoner had the motive, and that the motive was gain, and that the circumstances were such as to show fully that he had the ability to commit the deed. The model of the premises that had been exhibited, showed that with the exception of the store door, there was no way of communicating with the store except through the living room of the prisoner. This store door, when the fire was discovered, was firmly bolted, and the officers had to use great force to break it open. When broken open, the fire was found burning so briskly that water thrown upon it only seemed to add to its fury. Now, time must have been required to arrange all the materials that were prepared for the conflagration, but the person making these arrangements must have passed into the store through the sleeping room of Deniny and his wife, and it was for this Jury to consider whether, if this done by him, it could have been done without his knowledge. There was fire, also, in the cellar below, and it was claimed that, as that cellar had a door communicating with the street, which was unfastened, it might have been kindled by some outside person. But, however that may be, there was evidence that the fire below had not communicated to the store above. The fire below and the fire above were separate. That the fire above was kindled by some person was unmistakable. Who did it? That question they (the Jury) were to pass upon, and, in passing upon it, they were to cast aside every extraneous circumstance, for, whenever that they shall come when jurors shall forget the solemn oaths they have taken, and substitute mere statements of counsel, or appeals to prejudices, or nationalities, or sectionalities, among the causes that influence their verdict, we might cease, indeed, to look for justice, or the hope of justice. The Jury were to weigh the circumstances well, and, if they found them to point to the defendant—no matter what the consequences might be—they did not make the law—it was their duty to find him guilty.

In all trials, if the party charged fails to produce testimony that he might produce, the law says that such omission shall be held against him. It was charged by the prosecution that the stock of the prisoner was insured for $500, and that two days previous to the fire there was a good amount of goods in the store. How then was the small stock at the time of the fire to be accounted for? As merchants, they might, perhaps, be able to say whether Insurance Offices ever insured goods at much more than their value. There was the evidence before them, that chests of tea had been carried away at a very early hour in the morning.

They must not be influenced by anything outside of the evidence. The crime with which the prisoner was charged was the very worst in all the annals of crime. It was worse than murder, for there was no revenge to gratify, and one against which human ingenuity cannot possibly guard. The moment that a jury allows itself to be influenced by sectional prejudices, by questions as to the class or country to which a prisoner belongs, that moment we must bid adieu to anything like protection, or security to life or property.

Mr. Busteed offered several points for his Honor to charge upon, some of which he refused to charge. Mr. Busteed then excepted to most of the principal points in his Honor's charge, giving notice that he should prepare a bill of exceptions.

The Jury retired at 5¼ o'clock, having taken no refreshment since they quitted their homes.

At 8 o'clock they sent to the Recorder to inquire if they could find a verdict of guilty of an attempt at arson in the second degree? The Recorder replied that they could do so, if they thought the evidence warranted it. In half an hour they appeared in Court, and rendered their verdict: "Guilty of an Attempt at Arson in the second degree, with a recommendation to mercy."

Deniny was then summoned to the bar and asked what he had to say why judgment should not be pronounced upon him. He made a rambling address, from which all that we could gather was that Mrs. Brown, from whom he obtained the policy of Insurance on the premises, owed him money.

The Recorder proceeded at once to pass sentence. His Honor observed that everything that human ingenuity could devise had been resorted to in his favor by the counsel engaged for him. There was not a Juror admitted into the box who was not rigidly challenged to show that he had no knowledge of his case, and no bias against him. He had very nearly had to forfeit his life. Only once, during his term of office, had it fallen to his (the Recorder's) lot to sentence a man to death, and he trusted he never should have to pronounce that sentence again. He was glad, therefore, that the Jury had not convicted him of the capital charge. As it was, the punishment that could be inflicted upon him was imprisonment for the term of his natural life; but the recommendation of the Jury should be taken into consideration, and the lowest term which the law allowed should be awarded him. The sentence of the Court was that he be imprisoned, to hard labor, in the State Prison for TEN YEARS.

The Court-room was well-filled with spectators, many of them friends of Deniny, during these proceedings. The prisoner made no remark when the sentence was pronounced. Mr. Busteed will immediately prepare a bill of exceptions, on which he expects to obtain a new trial.

From the time of Deniny's first arrest in September last, until the present time, his wife has been constant and devoted in her attention to him. In connection with this unwavering fidelity, there is a touch of pathos mingled with the recent history of this unhappy man.

COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS—JUNE 10.

Before Justices Osborne and Connolly.

A great many cases were dismissed, the complainants failing to appear.

John Dolan stole three dresses from Julia Ann Cordes. She caught him going off with them from her room in the house No. 57 Spring street. Justice OSBORNE recognized him as an old offender; he was constantly on the island and before the Courts. Sentenced to six months in the Penitentiary.

John Mansfield and Edward Nugent were charged with a riot last Sunday. Counsel wanted to adjourn the case; the prisoners had no notice. "It is notice enough to a man to be in prison, I should think," said the Judge. The prisoner was remanded, however.

A rough-looking man, named Barney McGafney, with some friends, were abusing a woman, and Johanus Vail went and got some Policemen, when they ran off. The next time Barnard met her he struck her with his fist, knocked her down and kicked her. He pleaded guilty to the charge which she preferred against him, and was sent up to the Penitentiary for thirty days.

Ellen Gordon was going along South street, she said, with another woman, and on passing a tobacco store the latter said, "You're fond of tobacco," and put her hand into a box of it and took about twenty pounds. The testimony showed that Ellen was the real offender and it also showed her the way to the Penitentiary. She was sent up for three months.

A Chinaman entered a complaint of assault and battery against John Toule and Henry Seymour, good specimens of that class of dock hands who are met with daily on South and West streets. The prosecutor spoke English imperfectly, and the Judges could not understand him, so the prisoners were remanded until Saturday, so that an interpreter might be procured.

Owen Garvey pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a quantity of male wearing apparel, and was sent up for six months.

Daniel Marten, a common dock thief, stole a sailor's coat from on board a canal boat, and was sent to the penitentiary for six months to reflect upon the wickedness of his conduct.

Thomas Burns was brought before the bar with a bunged eye, charged with interfering with Officer McKenna, of the Sixteenth Ward Police, and assaulting him while he was trying to make an arrest. He was a rough-looking customer. Judgment, guilty; sentence suspended.

Wm. Meyer stole a shawl and umbrella from the room of Mr. Chase, a boarder at the Astor House. Michael McNamara, one of the porters of the hotel, followed him down Barclay-street and arrested him with the property in his possession. He was adjudged guilty and sent up for two months. He was an exceedingly sleek, genteel looking person, a perfect type of the hotel thief.

Lawrence Peters "took" 3 bags of sugar, value $16, from the bark Tiasale, at Pier No. 5 North River. The mate of the vessel testified against him, and only wanted him kept in prison until the vessel sails. Justice OSBORNE could not commit him to accommodate the mate unless the charge was substantiated. He was acquitted.

James Williams was charged by Jacob Beller with stealing a pair of Congress boots worth $3 from No. 111 Liberty-street. He was a hard-looking little boy and an old offender. He was sent to the House of Refuge.

Joseph Lipinskie knocked a man down. The man was willing to let him off, and he was discharged.

William Raymond, a clerk in the store of J. B. Williams, was sent by his employer to collect some bills. He followed his instructions beyond their strict letter. He collected the bills but put the money into his own pocket, and the prosecutor had not seen him since. He was charged in two complaints, and was sent to the House of Refuge.

John Ishwsintogen and Ignius Kunis, charged with malicious mischief, were remanded till Saturday.

Patrick Branan, charged with assault and battery, was discharged—no one appearing against him.

John Baxter, on a similar charge, was not prosecuted, and went off rejoicing.

John Feeny, charged with stealing some gold coins, was let off in the same way.

John Soule, brought to the bar for stealing three locks and one door-spring, in the absence of witnesses was discharged.

Wm. Martin and Wm. McHenry, each charged with assault and battery, got off the same way.

Edward McDonald was drunk one day with a friend, and walking along the street met Michael Leo, an old man, quietly returning from his work, with a pipe in his mouth. Without any provocation McDonald struck him in the face with his fist, broke his pipe in pieces, and knocked him down, "and my head knows the difference for it now," said the complainant. The prisoner was accompanied by his wife and baby. Judge CONNOLLY sent him to the City Prison for ten days. "I am determined to put down these street rowdies," said the Judge.

Jacob Silber was prosecuted on a charge of embezzlement. William Deikenbock, his employer, at No. 111 First-avenue, testified that money which a customer had paid the prisoner was not given to him as it should have been. The accused said he put it in the counter and went home; that he told his employer so.

Judge Osborne—(to Prosecutor)—Did he?

Prosecutor—No; he's a regular liar.

Prisoner—Don't you say I lie.

Prosecutor—You lie.

Judge—Stop that.

The boy was remanded till Saturday.

John McNolan was charged with assaulting and beating his wife. She did not appear, and he was discharged.

"Thomas Munson to the Bar." Officer Lotus saw the prisoner (a negro) drop some black breeches in West Broadway, and then run. The officer gave chase and arrested him, and it was afterwards ascertained that he had stolen them. The Judge asked the prisoner where he got them. He said another boy handed them to him. "Oh, yes," said Judge OSBORNE, of course. You'll have to invent some new story, you thieves—that's worn out. Give him four months.

Michael Rafferty was adjudged guilty of stealing some bank bills, and remanded till Saturday to give him time to procure witnesses to his previous good character.

In the case of Charles Keats, charged with stealing ten univers, judgment was suspended.

Henry Kinzer charged John Williams and James Thompson with stealing $3 worth of copper coin from No. 149 First-avenue, but did not appear to prosecute, and they were discharged.

Phillip Warren and Thomas Brady were brought upon a charge of assault and battery. It seems Brady had hired the premises, No. 548 Water-street, of Thos. Kershaw. The latter on the night of the 28th of November was in possession, and while in bed he heard Brady and Warren in the house, having entered with the key of the former. Kershaw got up and ordered them off; Brady ordered him off, claiming that he was the rightful occupant of the house and when he refused to go the prisoners committed the assault on him. It had already been decided in a civil suit that the complainant was the rightful occupant of the premises, and the charge was dismissed on the ground that he had a right forcibly to eject every one who had no business there if they refused to go peaceably.

Charles H. Fleming was charged with stealing $3 worth of paint from Mrs. Mary Parmlee, No. 36 Howard-street. He was employed to paint the house, and she furnished the materials. She had paid him $15 for services rendered; he claimed $5 more; she wouldn't give it, and he took the paint-box, and held it security for the balance claimed. Judge OSBORNE said that if the original complaint had been made before him he would have dismissed it. Fleming was acquitted.

Johann Haffnagle prosecuted Ditman Gordes, on the ground that he kept a disorderly house. Officer Gleason was called as a witness, and knew nothing relevant. A German woman, called to testify, was equally ignorant of anything tending to criminate the accused. "This is not the place to manufacture testimony," said the Judge. It appeared that the complainant occupied the lower part of the house, and the prisoner the upper, and this charge was made to procure his ejectment. The complaint was dismissed.

Several cases were postponed to Saturday.

Charles Miller was found guilty of an assault on Officer Burden, of the Eighteenth Ward Police, while in the discharge of his duty. Sentence was suspended.

The complaint of assault and battery against John Hand was dismissed, no witnesses appearing, as usual.

WHISKY—There were 375 bbls. Ohio and Prison prices, chiefly at 24c. ⅌ gallon.

WOOL—Is quite dull and heavy in this market. The London Colonial Wool Sales—which terminated on the 29th ult.—we find noticed in the Circular of Messrs. Southey & Son, thus:—

"The first series of sales of colonial wool of the season commenced the 30th ult., and concluded this day, comprising 15,000 bales of Sydney, 21,000 bales of Port Phillip, 1,300 bales of Tasmanian Land, 9,025 bales of South Australian, 336 bales of New-Zealand, 35 bales of Swan River, and 7,604 bales of Cape; making a total of 62,148 bales, besides 1,016 bales of East Indian. The extreme prices paid in the early February sales had a very prejudicial effect at the time on both the wool and woolen trades, and, notwithstanding the giving way afterwards, it soon became apparent the established rates at that period checked consumption in the manufacturing districts, dull markets having prevailed in the woolen trades. Under such disadvantages, together with continued high rates of discount, these sales opened. Our home buyers made most determined efforts to start prices at a material reduction; this was checked by the great support given at the early sales by buyers on foreign account, who secured nearly 50 ⅌ cent. of the wool offered at the early sales. In the second week, owing in a great measure to sleekness of foreign demand, prices declined a little, but soon recovered, and proceeded to the end with increasing firmness. The general decline on the closing prices of last sales may be quoted at about 1½d. ⅌ lb. Many superior marks in high condition, both from Sydney and Port Phillip, were supported by all classes of buyers, and sold very nearly at February prices. The wasting condition of a large portion of the wools from Port Phillip and Portland Bay accounts for prices per catalogue appearing below the above reduction. These sales contained a considerable quantity of lambs' wool; it sold only at moderate rates. A portion of the abundant supply of Cape sold in February being still in stock, the demand for the Wool of this colony was on the present occasion, as we expected, not very active. Fortunately, the arrivals have been limited; prices were about 5d. lower than the average of last sales. It is estimated that 25 to 30 ⅌ cent. of the whole quantity of Wool at these sales were bought for shipment. The few East Indian Wools offered reached former prices."

FREIGHTS—Were depressed and rates were somewhat irregular. Cotton, to Liverpool, 3c. @5c. 6d. ⅌ bale; Flour, 2d. @3d. ⅌ bbl.; Grain, 3d. @5d. ⅌ bushel; Beef, 5d. @5s. ⅌ tierce; Rosin, 6d. @6d. ⅌ bbl.; and Heavy Goods, 10s. @35s. 6d. ⅌ ton. For other ports, proportionate quotations.

ELECTROTYPING AND ELECTRO-PLATING.—A large assortment of BATTERIES AND OTHER MATERIALS used in the above arts; also, SOLUTIONS FOR DEPOSITING ALL THE METALS AND THEIR ALLOYS.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1857.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The United States Mail steamship George Law, with the California mail of May 20 and $1,920,376 in treasure, arrived at this port yesterday afternoon. We received by the Law late and interesting news from California, Oregon, the Sandwich Islands, New-Grenada, Central America, and the South Pacific.

The intelligence from California presents no feature of special importance. There had been frequent showers of rain, which would greatly benefit the growing crops. Though the general yield will be far below the average, the crops are not ruined as was at first feared they would be by the drought. Various meetings had been held throughout the State in favor of different routes for a wagon road across the Sierra Nevada. Another indictment has been found against Dr. Tapp, the defaulting State Treasurer. It is alleged that he has embezzled $41,000 of the State money, which is over and above the missing $100,000.

From Oregon we learn that the Indians are again manifesting hostilities. It is the general opinion in well-informed quarters that the Indian war will be recommenced as soon as the proper season comes.

There is scarcely an item of news, by this arrival, from the Sandwich Islands. Several British ships of war had stopped at Honolulu to coal on their way to China. Another guano expedition had started for Bird Island, one of the Hawaiian group.

We find in the San Francisco papers confirmatory intelligence of the murder of Mr. PARRISH and another gentleman near Salt Lake City. Our correspondent at Salt Lake sent us some particulars of this horrible occurrence, and they were published in this journal several weeks ago. The accounts in the San Francisco papers are substantially the same.

We have received and publish elsewhere, full details of the defeat and annihilation of General CRABB and his Sonora filibustering expedition. The battle, of which we previously had a brief account, took place at Cavorca, a small Mexican town of about 1,000 inhabitants, within one day's march of Lobos, on the Gulf of California, where CRABB's recruits and supplies were to land. This town consisted of one long street, quite closely built, with a church at its upper end, which was filled with Mexican troops. CRABB and his party occupied houses on the left side of the street. The fight lasted eight days, by which time the Americans, from ninety, (their original number,) were reduced to fifty-eight. At length the house which they were defending was fired, and they were forced to make unconditional surrender. The next morning they were all taken out and shot. One account states that the Mexican authorities were extremely brutal in dealing with their prisoners. General CRABB was calm and composed to the last. He died, as he lived, a man of great nerve and courage. The Californians were much moved at the fatal termination of this expedition, and many who would not sympathize with its members as filibusters, have still feelings for them as American citizens.

From New-Granada we have no news whatever in relation to our pending dispute with that republic. The Administration of President OSPINA remains dumb upon the subject. Mr. BOWLIN had intimated that—satisfied that no proposition would be made to him,—he would leave Bogota on the 20th inst. for the United States. The British Claim has been settled. New-Granada pays $500,000 in paper instead of cash. Diplomatic intercourse between the two countries has been resumed.

We have received some intelligence from Nicaragua since the departure of Gen. WALKER and his staff. Two hundred sick and wounded filibusters—the remnant of WALKER's army—had arrived at San Carlos in the steamer of the same name. They were all on their way home, and are described as being in a most pitiable condition. The men left in Rivas have probably gone to Costa Rica, where there are already some three hundred deserters from WALKER's army. Nicaragua was tranquil, and an election was to be held on the 15th of June. The Republic would be occupied by the four Central American States until its Government was firmly established.

From Peru we learn that the revolution under VIVANCO is at an end, and has proved, as we always anticipated, a complete failure. All the revolutionary ships had surrendered except the Apur-rac, 44 guns, and by arrangements with her officers, she was to be delivered up to CASTILLA within a week. It is not believed that the troubles of Peru will cease with the reestablishment of peace. Serious questions, we learn, will arise with Chili and the United States in relation to the guano. Large quantities were sold below the legitimate rates by VIVANCO, and the Peruvian Government is now about to claim the difference. The Republic of Chili has sent a special minister to Costa Rica for the purpose, it is supposed, of agreeing upon some plan by which the Spanish Armed Intervention can be strengthened, and the advance of Anglo Saxon filibusterism effectually checked.

The Empire City arrived last evening from New-Orleans and Havana, having left the latter port on the 7th. The news is unimportant. Sugars were dull, and prices were unchanged.

DANIEL CLARK, of Manchester, Republican, was yesterday elected United States Senator by the New-Hampshire Legislature, over JOHN S. WELLS, Democrat, by 130 votes against 125.

Gen. WALKER and suite arrived in Washington yesterday. He denies that his object in visiting that city is to see the President, and says that his business is more especially in New-York.

The Committee of Arrangements for the reception of Gen. WM. WALKER, had a meeting last evening at the "Pewter Mug," in Frankfort-street. They appointed some Sub-Committees, but did nothing of any special import.

There was a balloon ascension at Newark, last evening, at 8 o'clock. Professor MURAY, a Mr. CHEVERTON, and a lady, ascended in the car. It passed over Bergen Heights at 6½ o'clock, and, when last seen, was pulling up Long Island Sound.

All was quiet down to last night at Seguine's Point. The builders are doing well by their shanty, and the Police by their quoits. The stuff for the new wharf went down yesterday without having ignited on the route.

One hundred and fifty additional members of the Police Department were summoned yesterday to appear for trial before the Metropolitan Commissioners. One hundred and thirty-five insubordinates were then removed from the Department, after which the Board adjourned till Monday. Mayor WOOD and City-Judge RUSSELL continue also to dismiss and appoint, but they transact their business in private, and keep secret the names of those whom they appoint. McCUSKER, ex Mayor WOOD's Police, who, on Wednesday last took a prisoner from a Metropolitan officer, appeared before the Recorder yesterday, and gave bail to answer in the sum of $1,000. Police-Justice CONNOLLY ordered two Metropolitan officers, who had been detailed at the Lower Police Court, to "clear out," as he did not recognize them as Policemen. Some of the old force detailed at the General Sessions, who refused to heed their dismissal by Recorder SMITH, and who attempted to prevent the new men from entering the Grand Jury Room, received a note from the District-Attorney, informing them that their services were no longer required about the Grand Jury Room still unfinished, one of them locked the Jury room door, put the key in his pocket, and went for advice to the Mayor, who desired him to return and surrender the key to the District-Attorney. This, of course, was done.

The obsequies of Mr. JOSEPH S. TAYLOR, the late Street Commissioner, took place yesterday at St. Stephen's Church, Broome-street, where the funeral service was read by Rev. Dr. PRICE, who also preached an appropriate sermon. The Mayor, Common Council and Heads of Departments were present. After the ceremony the body was interred in the Second-street Cemetery. The flags on the public buildings and hotels were at half-mast throughout the day.

The funeral services of Dr. VACHE took place yesterday morning at the Church of the Transfiguration, Twenty-ninth-street. Several members of the Common Council were in attendance. An impressive discourse was delivered by the pastor, Rev. G. C. HOUGHTON.

The U. S. Coast Survey schooner Bowditch, Capt. MITCHELL, lies at anchor in our harbor, and will sail on Tuesday for Nantucket and Vineyard Sounds, under charge of Prof. HENRY MITCHELL, for the purpose of carrying out his tidal and current observations on that part of the coast, establishing tide-guages, &c. This department of the Coast Survey Service in our waters has for a long time been under the supervision of Prof. MITCHELL, who has established greatly improved tide-guages of his own construction at various important points. After the completion of his trip eastward, he returns to carry on his operations about Sandy Hook and the Lower Bay.

An evening paper, whose circulation runs largely to editions, stated yesterday that a slave schooner had been captured at 4 o'clock in the morning outside of Sandy Hook, by the Washington cutter, (meaning doubtless the cutter Washington,) and that she was sent up in tow of a tug, in custody of Federal officers. As the cutter Washington did not leave her anchorage in this harbor until about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and had not returned at night, and as the United States Marshal, who ought to know what slavers are captured in our waters, pronounces the story baseless, and that neither he nor FAUNCE knows anything about it, we take it that no slaver was captured. Still, if the United States officers were half as lively as our reporters were yesterday, after reading the statement, the news, if republished a week hence, we suspect, might prove eminently true.

The trial of the brig Ellen on a charge of being fitted out for the Slave trade was continued yesterday and the testimony closed. The owner and the charterer and the master all tell a straight story as to the employment of the vessel, and her preparation for the voyage was certainly made in the most open manner possible, and every opportunity offered to the authorities to test their suspicions by investigation. The main interest was in the examination of Capt. VAN VECHTEN. His account for his statements, or, rather, insinuendoes that the vessel was going on a slaving voyage, by saying that his brother had interfered improperly with his business and insisted that he was going on a slaving voyage, and he therefore allowed it to pass in that way, and that his statements to Capt. FAUNCE and Mr. McKEON were equally unfounded, and some of them made in jest. It will prove rather an unprofitable affair for Capt. VAN VECHTEN's owners, even should the Court now accept his testimony that he knows nothing whatever of thevessel's being intended for the Slave trade. Perhaps Capt. VAN VECHTEN himself will learn that it is not well to admit guilt hereafter where there is none, even in jest. The case will be summed up on Monday.

Yesterday, in the Burdell Estate case before the Surrogate, the evidence was closed for the contestants. Dr. MAINE testified as to Rev. Mr. MANVIER's declaration that he could not recognize Dr. BURDELL as the man he married. Mrs. WILLIAMS and other witnesses were examined to prove that the Doctor was in Brooklyn on the evening of the alleged marriage—Oct. 28. Some letters written by the Doctor to DENIS HURBARD in October and November last were introduced, in which he speaks of Mrs. CUNNINGHAM as a "she devil" and "old hag"—with like expressions, not common to a happy bridegroom in his honeymoon. Evidence for the claimant commenced by the examination of Rev. Dr. SNODGRASS, who proved that Mrs. CUNNINGHAM had called upon him to perform the marriage with Dr. BURDELL.

The trial of DENIRY was brought to a close yesterday in the Court of General Sessions. The whole day was occupied with the speeches of counsel for the defence and prosecution, and the Recorder's charge to the Jury. After being absent nearly three hours,—a much shorter time than was expected—the Jury found a verdict of guilty of an attempt at arson in the second degree, accompanied with a recommendation to mercy. The Recorder promptly sentenced DENIRY to ten years' imprisonment, with hard labor.

WM. SHERMAN, the sailor who was stabbed on Tuesday afternoon in Cherry-street, while engaged in a squabble with two negroes, died at the New-York Hospital on Thursday night. An inquest was held upon the body yesterday afternoon by Coroner CORNEBY. The verdict rendered by the Jury was, that the said WM. SHERMAN came to his death from the effects of a stab inflicted in the abdomen on the 9th inst., in Cherry-street, at the hands of STEPHEN PINERET, and that SAMUEL WATKINS was accessory to the fatal deed. The accused were then remanded to the City Prison.

Yesterday, in the Supreme Court, Judge CLERKE denied the motion made on the part of the proprietors of the TIMES, in the suit brought against them by Dr. BLADDELL, for an alleged libel, to strike out certain parts of the complaint. This decision does not affect the ultimate question, whether the publication complained of was libelous or not.

On the first of July the new tariff takes effect under which foreign liquors are subject to only thirty per cent. instead of one hundred per cent. ad valorem duty as heretofore: this will account, in part, no doubt, for the three cargoes of schnapps which have lately arrived here from Rotterdam and gone into bond for a single dealer in this line.

The Temperance Alliance has appointed Messrs. BENNETT, LEIGH, GREELEY, CAPRON, WARREN, SNOW, LLOYD, TRALL, SNODGRASS and WEBBURN to represent the Alliance in the State Temperance Convention in Albany, on Tuesday next, 16th inst.

The Fire Underwriters yesterday adopted some stringent regulations concerning bonded warehouses, intended to guard against any more such losses as were suffered by the fire in Baxter's building.

The body of an unknown man was found yesterday, at the foot of Fifteenth-street, East River. He appeared to have been in the water about ten days, and was about 30 years of age. An inquest was held, and a verdict of "Found drowned," rendered.

A young Scotchman named DOUGLAS P. REID killed himself with laudanum, on Thursday, at No. 618 Sixth-avenue, where he resided with his parents. He was a graduate of the University of London, and was highly accomplished.

On Wednesday night, SNYDER & VANDEMARK's store, at Stone Ridge, Ulster County, was broken open, and a large quantity of valuable articles of merchandise and $150 in money were stolen. There is no clue whatever to the discovery of the robbers.

The disappearance of a young lady from Ashland, Greene County, has been accounted for. It turns out that she eloped with a married man, whose disappearance was also noted about the same time. The man left behind him a wife and several children.

The A 1 sloop yacht Emily, fifteen tons burden, left Thorne's Dock, Brooklyn, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, with some twenty persons on board, for a pleasure trip to Seguine's Point. Among the passengers were Deputy Superintendent of Police FOLK, Sergeants STEWART and SMITH, and officers VAN WAGNER, RAYNER, FROST and ROGERS, all of the Metropolitan Police force, Brooklyn; DANIEL L. NORTHRUP, DAVID K. SEAMAN, and other citizens. The party started off in excellent spirits and a strong breeze, and when off West Banks, about 1 o'clock, through some mismanagement or mishap the yacht struck upon the Banks, and almost instantly rolled over, spilling all on board into the water. Fortunately all clung to some portion of the boat, and soon after the steamer City Island came to their assistance, when an attempt was made to get the boat off, but the hawser parted. About this time Pilot Boat No. 7 came up and took off all but five of the passengers, and landed them near Fort Hamilton, when they made their way to the City, which they reached about 4 o'clock. Some various hats, boots, and other articles of clothing which happened to be scattered about the boat at the time she capsized were lost. Several of the passengers remained behind to take charge of the yacht, and the City Island was to return last night and tow them off the Banks.

The Coroner's investigation of the Hoyt-street (Brooklyn) wife-murder reveals some horrible low-life secrets. The neighbors testify that repeatedly they found the drunken mother with her babe, two years old, drunk in her lap, and once it rolled from her lap to the floor. For the presumed murder of this drunken mother, the drunken father is now under arrest.

New-York "Peoples" and Gen. Walker.

"Three tailors of Tooley-street" on a certain memorable occasion issued a proclamation, emanating from themselves, and themselves only, commencing—"We, the people of England." In the great filibustering meeting held on Thursday evening, to concoct a welcome for the inestimable WILLIAM WALKER, "the people of New-York" were represented very much in the same manner. We have unfortunately always at hand a large number of professional spouters, not only to say for us what we wish to say, but also what we never dreamed of saying. Strangers must think us the oddest people on the face of the earth. There is no subject on which "the people of New-York" does not hold sentiments diametrically opposed at one and the same time. We are Pro-Slavery and Anti-Slavery, Pro-Liquor-law and Anti-Liquor-law, Pro-Fillibuster and Anti-Fillibuster. Our political hue is so curious, that we seem to be of two different colors at once. The people of New-York, speaking through the mouth of Alderman WILSON or Mayor WOOD, certainly appears a very different people from that which speaks through Dr. CHEEVER or HENRY WARD BEECHER, and yet there are not two peoples of New-York, but one.

The explanation of this apparent paradox is very simple. We are surrounded by impudent and audacious imposters, who, taking advantage of our absorption in business, present themselves to the world as our mouthpieces, and father upon us all their own folly and absurdity. To repudiate their bombast would be almost as ridiculous as for the three Estates of England to have disowned the three tailors of Tooley-street, but there are, nevertheless, occasions in which these pretenders deserve, for the sake of the community at large, something as like a rebuke as we can afford to bestow on a body of which "WILLIAM WILSON" is one of the leading members.

At the meeting in the National Hall on Thursday evening, representing as it professes to have done "the people of New-York," the said people proved themselves—with all respect, be it spoken—as great asses as any people of the same position and attainments in either ancient or modern times. The only good purpose the demonstration has served, is to show to the world what fountains of nonsense some of the military and legal luminaries of this metropolis have at command. Mr. BEARDSLEY, for instance, thought there was no apology necessary for his appearance whenever the subject of liberty and humanity was under discussion.

What, we should like to know, is there so contemptible about "liberty and humanity," as to render it unnecessary for any blockhead who undertakes to speak about them to ask pardon of the public for his presumption? Mr. CREIGHTON, who followed in his footsteps, has entitled himself to the gratitude of posterity by giving to the world his notions of generalship and statesmanship. His great General is a man who begins a campaign with a thousand men and the resources of a whole State, and ends it with one hundred and fifty men, two streets of a small town, three mules and a horse, and makes his escape to avoid hanging. His great statesman is a man who starts as elected President of a flourishing Republic, and in eighteen months has the whole population in arms against him, and has to seek safety in flight. From ANDREW JACKSON PLUMB we have some most interesting particulars regarding General WALKER's early life, which, for his own sake, we are sorry he has made public, as some future biographer would, no doubt, have paid him handsomely for them. It appears—and our hand trembles with excitement, as we write the words—that he knew Mr. CREIGHTON's greatest captain and greatest statesman of modern times, when "he kept a law office in Marysville." As a mere matter of curiosity, it is a pity the gentleman contented himself with this simple fact. Mr. CREIGHTON has not thought it necessary to afford us any further information, but he has done better. He has assured us that ever since that eventful period, he has been "watching WALKER." Now when a man like CREIGHTON watches a man like WALKER, the world may well hold its breath. Something is sure to come of it, and from CREIGHTON's vigils, have resulted CREIGHTON's opinion that WALKER had shown "the elements of a General and statesman." What these "elements" are, or in what portion of his person, WALKER is in the habit of carrying them, Mr. CREIGHTON does not vouchsafe to inform us; but vague and meagre as the intelligence is, its importance cannot be overrated. Mr. CREIGHTON has also discovered that KOSSUTH, rousing his own countrymen against Austria, furnishes an exact parallel to WALKER's leading American adventurers against a foreign nation, with which his own government was at peace. CREIGHTON himself is in one respect like GOETHE, who, we may mention for his information, was a well-known German philosopher and poet. GOETHE had a horse and so we presume has CREIGHTON; but we fear the parallel could not be extended much farther.

The great speech of the night, however, was from Colonel FARRNS of filibustering notoriety, and a very great speech it was. He dealt out to all hands an ample allowance of figures and tropes. He tore passion to rags and tatters, and was as pathetic as a filibuster could reasonably be expected to be. It appears, according to him, that WALKER is not the only person who has gone to the wall within the last year. There has been a distribution of disaster and calamity all round, made upon the stinted principles of justice. The great chiefs of the Democratic party are pining in obscurity, and suffering the tortures of a reproving conscience. WALKER, after his two years of generalship and statesmanship, led out of his dominions a forlorn band, of whom only himself and another were able to pay their passage home, and is now reduced to such a pitch of degradation that his reputation has to depend for its lustre on CREIGHTON's reminiscences and FARRNS' eloquence. W. L. MARCY, after all his clever diplomacy, is, it seems, "a stranger in his old house," from which we conclude all the people in that neighborhood died out or removed during the ex-Secretary's four years absence. CALEB CUSHING is, says Colonel FARRNS, in much the same position as HESTER PRYNNE when she wore the scarlet letter on her breast, and is obliged "to parade his own infamy" before his fellow-townsmen. This mysterious statement we hope does not convey any imputation upon Mr. CUSHING's general morality.

The Colonel is never so eloquent as when he begins to tell us about the feelings of the people of this State—whom he divides into "blacksmiths, farmers, weavers, sailors, schoolboys and maidens"—with regard to WALKER's doings in Nicaragua. None of these people, it appears, think of anything, or see anything in WALKER's career but his "noble heroism, his self-denial, his voluntary hardships, and his patience in adversity," &c., &c. We beg to assure Colonel FARRNS that these are just the classes upon whom WALKER's strong will and brute courage make least impression, and upon whom his heartlessness, cruelty, and ambition make most impression. It is only the trading politicians and demagogues of the City, who fatten upon public delusions, and foster gross iniquities, who are dazzled or pretend to be dazzled by the battles and sieges of the great Nicaraguan War. The blacksmiths, weavers, and farmers of whom the real people of this State are composed, who live by honest toil, and call a robber a murderer, and nothing more, care no more about WALKER than about any other buccaneer, ancient or modern; and as to the maidens, to use the touching language of Colonel FARRNS, "whose throbbing breast and glistening eye told where her truant heart is wandering," we would not advise either General WALKER or any of his gallant companions in arms, to flatter themselves that their great deeds will cause many maidens' hearts in this part of the country to wander in their direction, let their eyes glisten, or their hearts throb ever so much, on account of any of their martial performances in Central America. The telegraph informs us that Gen. WALKER has arrived in Washington, and it is not unlikely that he will come to this City to receive the welcome that awaits him from at least two classes of the "peoples" of the commercial metropolis.

The Tammany Hall Imbroglio.

The old stagers of the City Hall purlieus, who have ruled in the land of the Tammanies so long, are in much perturbation lest the reform movement, initiated by Messrs. DILLON, COCHRANE, SICKLES & Co., should go so far as to replace with something like order the confusion which prevails in the Democratic City organization. The question naturally arises what would become of the back-door politicians of the Wigwam if primary meetings could no longer be bought and sold; if the market price for voters should go down, and General Committees be elected by the people, instead of being gouged into place by Mayor WOOD's policemen, to whom he once issued an edict prohibiting their interference at elections? Alas for the palmy days of Tammany, if the faust-recht dynasty end, and the Wilson-Small Committee should be found to have no place excepting on the Park-row sidewalk. Even the spoils of the Street Commissioner's office will scarcely console them for the necessity which will henceforward exist of voting honestly, and refraining from the ballot-stuffing Primary elections.

The set of regulations which were adopted at Tammany Hall on the 4th inst., by a majority of 78 to 8, as a basis of Democratic union and reform, appeared in the columns of the TIMES on Wednesday. They commend themselves to the approbation of the community, and are creditable to those who framed them. The names of the gentlemen who voted for the Report of the Reform Committee, include a more respectable array of talent and influence than we had been accustomed for some months past to see in connection with the action of Tammany Hall. The Mayor is, of course, opposed to the transfer of power in the party from his natural allies to the individuals who will hereafter preside over its action. On the other hand, the Corporation Counsel, and all of those Federal officers of the Government whose names appear in the Report, favor the reformation of existing abuses.

The Ward organizations, suggested by the reform plan, will hold their first elections on Wednesday next. Meanwhile the Wilson-Small Committee have expelled all of those of its members who have failed to recognize it by attending its meetings. The partisanship therefore of the anti-Tammanyites will, henceforth, be unbroken, while the regular organization will probably be unanimous in supporting the measures which were adopted on the 4th inst. Where the imbroglio will end, can only be surmised; but whatever promises to decrease the disorders which have so long prevailed will certainly meet with general sympathy, as well from those who are inside as outside of the Democratic party.

STRAWBERRY WEATHER.—We had, yesterday, an entire day of sunshine, the first pleasure of the kind we have enjoyed in a fortnight. It was particularly needed to sweeten the strawberries which were coming to market in great abundance, but as sour as cranberries. It was fine strawberry weather, and henceforward, until the season for this delicious fruit comes to an end, they will improve in flavor and abundance. The bright sun will also encourage the roses to open their buds, which have been perversely closed during the wet weather.

The End of the World.

Why should not this world come to an end to-day? That for some fifty thousand of our fellow-mortals the world will come suddenly and decisively to an end between the rising and the setting of the sun, past experience and the inexorable voice of the Statistical Society compel us to believe. Why not, then, for the rest of us? What reason have we for supposing that the depopulation of this globe of ours will go on forever, after the gradual fashion that has been so long in vogue?

The movement of mankind from one part to another of the "round terrestrial ball" has been singularly irregular. Intervals of general quiescence have been followed by ages of impulsive and uncontrollable excitement, when the fever of exodus possessed the tribes of men, and whole nations, displacing themselves like glaciers on the mountain-sides, went drifting off to other lands. Why may not the accounts of the race be suddenly closed, then, by one grand wholesale catastrophe which shall transfer us in a body to other seats and other spheres? These are questionings to which no philosophy can give a satisfactory answer. Analyze the matter as subtly as you may, you will find it impossible to determine why, if Smith or Jones may be unceremoniously knocked out of his comfortable or his uncomfortable cell in the great hive without a summons or a warning, the mighty multitude of us, the innumerable myriads of the comfortable and uncomfortable men and women that swarm in the same busy, bustling, troubled, vexatious, incomprehensible abode, may not be trundled off as unexpectedly, as decisively, into the limbos of space.

If Jones or Smith were never called away until he had visibly done the work which appeared for him to do, and lived out the life of which he seemed to be capable, then we might indeed hold the sudden termination of the world's great life to be a vague chimera. For clearly that vast and ingenious entity mankind has by no means as yet put the best face upon itself, its affairs, and the earth that we inhabit. There is a vast deal of work, of dirty work and of clean work, too, still to be done beneath the sun. The Russian war has ended, but the Chinese war has just begun—Kansas is in a way of pacification, but rebellion mutters menacingly in Utah—President PIERCE has expired by limitation, but JEFFERSON DAVIS is making eyes at the Gulf of Mexico—peace begins to reign at Seguine's Point, but the streets of New-York are yet uncleaned. Think of the terrible questions yet to be solved; of the future of France and of Europe, trembling in the uncertain breath of one bold, bad man; of the fearful possibilities and the odious certainties of our own Slavery question undecided, inexplable, pressing passionately upon our attention. Think of the social difficulties yet to be made smooth—of pauperism and crime festering in the crowded heart of civilization—of the premature misery of millions of children, and of the hopeless degradation of adult millions more. Think, too, of the splendid opportunities yet to be improved—of the magnificent unsettled regions, teeming with undeveloped plenty and unrealized happiness for vaster generations yet than the earth has ever seen. Truly the world, if it vanish to-day in the fiery rush of the as yet undiscovered enemy whom the multitudes have scented afar off, can claim no euthanasy as having done its work and fulfilled its many chances.

But, as we have said, this thing cannot possibly be a guarantee of safety to us when we look around upon the perpetual flux and disappearance of incompleted Joneses and of unfulfilled Smiths whisking off into outer darkness and the silence from which no answer comes.

And so it is, that in all ages the masses of men have been in a flutter of uneasy anticipation whenever any extraordinary natural phenomenon seemed to threaten an unusual uproar in the elemental world. Plagues, pestilences, the Aurora Borealis, earthquakes, waterspouts, famines, inundations have each and all made themselves responsible, at one time or another for frightening mankind out of their senses with the notion that the "end of all things was at hand." But above all other strange and dolorous things, your comet has been the favorite herald of the final woe.

It does not matter that fifty comets have come and gone, leaving still adjourned the solemn settling day. The fifty-first shakes shuddering horror over all the weary world; and now, in the middle of the nineteenth century, more men than would care to own it will feel a little uneasy in their minds between the midnight of the twelfth of June and the morning of the fourteenth. To-morrow's breakfast will be eaten with a sense of great inward renewal by numbers of sufficiently intelligent people—while among the ignorant millions of both continents we may be sure that there will be almost as general a drawing of the long breath that follows danger as there was when DEAN SWIFT looked with sad and scornful eyes on the terrified piety and the reassumed blasphemy of London streets a century and a half ago—for after all, we do not believe the world will end to-day.

Monsieur BABINET's comet—which, be it observed, is not Monsieur BABINET's comet, as that distinguished savant has distinctly disowned it, if it comes at all will come "as gently as a sucking dove," or as HORACE WALPOLE's London earthquake which was so mild, "you might have stroked it." Nothing will end but the 13th of June, and the life of this current week. And on Monday it will all begin again. Would we might believe that the world in general, and any one of us in particular, would be much the better for the pause which the undying superstition of a thousand years will have offered to us for thinking upon that true, final and altogether inevitable end of the world whereof neither Monsieur BABINET nor the newspaper nor the almanac is like to give us timely warning!

CRICKET—AMERICANS vs. ENGLISH.—This match was concluded yesterday at 1 P. M., the result being a defeat of the Americans was very good, but not equal to that of their opponents, who were a very strong eleven. The result was anticipated, as most of the Americans were comparatively young players, whereas the English had professional cricketers in their eleven.

The score summed up for the Americans at their first innings 58, at their second 54. Total, 112. For the English, first innings, 94; second, 20. Total, 114.

ARRIVAL OF GEN. WALKER AND SUITE—THE CABINET AND STATE AFFAIRS—MAIL CONTRACTS.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 12.

Gen. WALKER, Colonels LOCKRIDGE and WAYNE and Captain FAYSSOUX, arrived here at 11 o'clock, from the West. They are quartered at Brown's Hotel.

A number of gentlemen were introduced to Gen. WALKER during the day in his private department. He denies that his object in coming to Washington is to see the President, and says that his business is especially in New-York, for which City he will leave in a day or two.

The attention of the Cabinet was occupied by Utah affairs to day. The arrival of Ex-Governor Reverdy FRANK THOMAS, of Maryland, who has been designated for the Governorship, is daily expected. In the event of his non-acceptance the indications are that Col. CUMMINGS, who having once declined but is now an applicant, will be appointed. It is not improbable that an entirely new set of officers for the Territory will be sent out; the Surveyor General included. The three Judges will be appointed from the West or Northwest, and the Marshal from Mississippi. Several days will elapse before answers can be received from those to whom these appointments have been tendered. The corps of officers will travel to Utah with the military forces.

The Postmaster-General has concluded the contract for carrying the mails between San Antonio and San Diego, with JAMES E. BIRCH, of California, at the rate of $189,000 per annum for the semi-monthly service.

The report that the contract for conveying the overland mail to California has been given to Messrs. BUTTERFIELD, FARGO & Co., of the American Express Company of New-York, is incorrect.

GENERAL SCOTT AND THE BUNKER HILL CELEBRATION—LOSS ON THE ERIE SQUADRON.

BOSTON, Friday, June 12.

Much regret is felt in consequence of an announcement, said to be reliable, that General SCOTT will not be able to attend the Bunker Hill celebration.

The ship Syncuse, of Thomaston, is ashore at Beaver Island, between Halifax and Cape Canso, and will prove a total loss. Her keel is knocked out, and her rudder unhung. She is full of water, and has been stripped. Her burden was 1,166 tons, and she was built in Rockland in 1855. She was valued at $72,000, and was in ballast, from New-York for the Gulf of St. Lawrence. She is insured $9,000 in Rockland, and $6,000 in Thomaston, Me.

Wallack's Theatre.

TALFOURD's tragic play of "Ion"—the most chaste and beautiful of all modern efforts at the purely classic—was produced here last night, with Mrs. J. W. WALLACK, Jr., as the hero. It was the good fortune of Mrs. WALLACK to receive the congratulation of Baron TALFOURD for her impersonation of this character, and from a source so sincere, just and appreciative, merit has nothing better to desire. The play, notwithstanding its literary excellencies, is not, and never has been, a popular one. It exceeds the models in dramatic action, but notwithstanding this, it is for modern appetites dull and heavy. The plastic grace with which Mrs. WALLACK interprets the conceptions of the bard, is full of the spirit of ancient poetry. Physically weak in voice, she speaks more plainly to the common understanding, than mere power, even where discreetly used, could possibly do. Her performance was excellent, and justifies her claim to a high position in the profession to which she belongs. The Clemanthe of Mrs. HOEY was also an admirably limned picture. Mr. DROUET as Adrastus, deserves all the remaining honors of the piece. This excellent actor needs opportunities of this kind to show what he can do.

We are troubled about the scenery at this house, and must unbosom ourselves once more. When a piece is revived for a single performance it is not to be expected, although it is much to be desired, that the scenery will be perfect in every respect. But in life, and in scenery, it is necessary and philosophical to make both ends meet with as much seemly propriety as possible. This fact does not appear to be fully appreciated at Wallack's Theatre. The conglomeration of ancient and modern scenery which was thrust on the stage last night says very little for the judgment of the gentleman whose duty it is to attend to the matter. In the third act we had the apartments of Adrastus sitting beneath an arch of questionable style, surrounded by gay Venetian tenements on one side, gouty gothic tenements on the other, and a Moresco-Italian street at the back. In the last act we were regaled with an elegantly green papered apartment. These things are gross, but not to be compared with a custom which has obtained here of patching up a scanty scene with other scenes of a totally different character. Last night an incipient "interior" was placed on the stage supported by a fragment of forest on the left, and a slice of street on the right. A peculiarity of the "wings" may also be referred to. In olden times they used to make their appearance in a prompt and decorous manner. Now they come on leisurely like distinguished artists, one at a time; sometimes in a most extraordinary way too, like dancers, capering on their toes with a nimbleness wonderful to behold. We refer to these things because they need reform, and because we desire to consult the true interests of the best place of amusement in the city.

To-night Mrs. J. W. WALLACK, jr., takes her benefit. "London Assurance" is the attraction selected for the occasion, with Mr. E. PLACIDE, Mr. BLAKE, Mr. LESTER, Mr. WALCOT, Mrs. V. W. WALLACK, and Miss MARY GARROW in the principal parts.

Later from Havana—Arrival of the Empire City.

The Empire City, Capt. JOHN MCGOWAN, left New Orleans on the 8th inst., at 8 A. M., and made the run thence to Havana in 85 hours.

There she transferred her California mails and passengers bound outward to the steamship Granada, S. P. GRIFFIN commanding, which latter vessel entered the harbor just after the Empire City.

Captain GRIFFIN reported his ship as having left Aspinwall on the 2d inst. at 5 P. M., to be followed shortly after by the George Law for New-York.

The Empire City brings some 30 passengers from Aspinwall, via Havana per steamer Granada, mostly passengers by the Seneca.

The West-India mail steamer Isabel arrived from Vera Cruz on the afternoon of the 7th, to leave for St. Thomas on the following day.

The French steamer Alma, Captain BOUDRET, arrived at Havana on the 4th inst., from Cadiz via the Canaries and Porto Rico. The regular steamer was to leave Havana for Cadiz on the 12th.

There is little new at Havana. SANTA ANA is still "the coming man," and is looked for daily.

There is as yet no epidemic disease at Havana, either ashore or among the shipping, malicious reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sugars are quoted dull during the past week, with prices unchanged. Freights are still no better. Exchange is heavier: on London, 7@7¼ premium; New-York and Northern cities, 4¼@4½ discount.

The Empire City brings 151 passengers; of these 63 are from Havana and 88 from Aspinwall. Specie on freight from New-Orleans, $147,000 in specie, consigned as follows: $100,000 to Bank of America; $47,000 to Baring & Co.

THE BOTT-STREET MURDER.

INVESTIGATION BEFORE THE CORONER.

A Child Two Years Old made Drunk—Horrible Revelations in Low Life.

The investigation as to the circumstances attending the death of MARY KEYS, was commenced yesterday afternoon, before Coroner RESSEGUE and the following

	JURY.
1. John Roake,	7. James Roake,
2. James Brady,	8. Hermann Tiemy,
3. John Kelly,	9. John Fraser,
4. Nicholas McGrath,	10. Peter Roake,
5. Ogden Duneman,	11. Peter Nolan,
6. John Cassidy,	12. Patrick Coughlan.

WILLIAM H. VAN DUYNE, M. D., sworn: I reside No. 215 Gold-street; I made a post mortem examination of Mary Keyes, in Bott-street, yesterday, fourteen hours after death, in company with Dr. McGrath; in viewing the body externally there was one large contused wound on the outer edge of the left eyebrow, one small contused wound nearly opposite, over the right eyebrow; very large contused wound about the centre of the right cheek; also a small contused wound at the edge of the left lip, another midway o the clavicle, or collar bone; there was a scratch about an inch to the left of a median line to the chin; there were three slight scratches about an inch and a half to the left of the median line to the neck; one directly across the median line of the neck; two slight scratches upon the posterior portions of each elbow shaved the head carefully, but found no contusion about the scalp or trunk; in making an incision through the scalp, there was about three ounces of extravasated blood escaped; between the dura mater and the brain there was half an ounce of extravasated blood on the left side, and about three ounces of blood on the right side, and about four ounces at the base of the brain; the organs of the chest, thorax and abdomen were all healthy; she died from compression of the brain, the result of extravasated blood between the membranes of the brain and the brain; there was no fracture of the skull or of the jaw; compression of the brain would be the result of such injuries as I have described on the head; think the injuries to the right were made by a blunt instrument or a fall—a foot would make such wounds.

To Jurors—She might have received some of the wounds by falling; the neck was black and blue at the collar bone, about midway; cannot say whether she was intoxicated or not at the time of death; examined the stomach, but found nothing to indicate it there.

Edward C. McGrath, sworn—I reside corner of Amity and Court streets; assisted Dr. Van Duyne at the post mortem examination, and fully concur with his testimony.

John Brennan, sworn—I reside in Bond-street near Warren; am a policeman; knew deceased; on Wednesday evening was going down Baltic-street towards Smith, about six o'clock, when two women (Mrs. Gormley I think was one) met me and said, "Well, officer, we have been looking for you; a man down here has nearly beat his wife to death;" went to the house and one of the women shoved the door open and said, "there he sits;" deceased was lying in the corner of the room, her legs bent up and her arms extended; one of the women told Keys that he had murdered his first wife and now he wanted to kill this one; asked deceased if she could speak, and she shook her head; one eye was closed; I said to Keys, who was sitting in the front room, "You have got yourself into a nice scrape, you have killed that woman" he replied, "She be d—d, she should have been killed long ago;" some one said a Doctor should be brought; Keys asked if he should go after one; witness told him that he was under arrest; he showed me a bottle of liquor which he said he had taken from his bed at noon; told him to come to the Station-House, when he asked for permission to remain long enough to dress the child; Keys appeared to have been drinking, but didn't think he was intoxicated when

To Jurors—He said that his wife had been out all the night before with a man; when I went in Keys was rocking the crib containing the baby; Mrs. Keys was at the Station-house the morning before for a warrant for him; when I was in the house Officer Wilson was with me; he said to Keys that his wife said she was dying of the horrors then; on the way to the Station-House he said his wife had fallen upon the sidewalk and hurt herself.

Mary Gormley, sworn—I reside in Baltic-street, between Hoyt and Smith; knew deceased; on Wednesday evening a peddling woman told me that Keyes had nearly killed his wife; went to the house, and the children in the vicinity said that Keys had killed his wife; went into the house, and saw Mrs. Keys in the bedroom, and thought she was dead; then Keys was in the bedroom.

James Seery, sworn—Live in Baltic street between Bond and Hoyt; knew Mr. and Mrs. Keys; day before yesterday, when going to school about one o'clock, heard Mrs. Keys screaming; went and looked into the window, and saw Mr. Keys over her; the window was up, I believe; did not see him strike her; he did not say anything, but she commenced to scold him.

To Jurors—They were in the bed-room; she called him names; could not see her; Jimmy King called me to the house; looked in at the window under the stoop; it was not very light in the room.

Catherine King sworn—Resides in the same house as Keys. This witness testified that, on Tuesday night, about eleven o'clock, deceased came to her room, with a child in her arms, and asked to be permitted to stay all night, as Keys was drunk and had a knife and would kill her if she went in; she let her stay all night; the next morning, about nine o'clock, they started out together for fuel, when they met Keyes at the door; Mrs. K. stopped then, and witness went out alone. Witness proceeded: When I returned the child, three years old, was drunk; Mrs. Keys said that her husband had given the child liquor; that he brought home two pints of brandy, and that she had drank considerable herself, and felt high; went out again, and when I came back she had a black eye; towards night Mrs. Keenan came to me and said Mrs. Keyes was lying, but I did not dare to go in; I was afraid of Keys.

To Jurors—Have heard deceased say that Keys often beat her; she was not drunk Tuesday night; saw him beat her three years ago; when I came into the house the mother and child, two years old, were both drunk; the child fell from her lap to the floor, and blood flowed from its nose; thought I heard them quarreling about five o'clock; could not hear what was said, or distinguish the voices; he was very quarrelsome.

Catherine King, daughter of the last witness, about six years of age, was called to the stand, but not sworn. She said: "Keys came home, and found the door fastened, and he put me into the window, to open the door; witness opened the door, when Keys commenced beating his wife; he put a chair upon her stomach, and then jumped upon her, kicked her on the head, and then took a broomstick, and beat her about the head; Mrs. Keys was drunk on the bed, and Mr. Keys said that he would have the life out of her before six o'clock; this was about one o'clock; he beat her again about five o'clock, when Keys sent her off with the little girl.

William Wilson sworn, policeman of the Third District—Was in the house with Officer Brannigan about 6 o'clock; saw the crowd at the house, and went in; testimony corroborates that of the other witnesses; Keys said his wife ought to have been killed long ago; the witness told him that it was an awful thing to treat his wife so, and he replied that she deserved it; she had got William Overzeigh sworn—I reside corner of Hoyt and Butler; knew deceased; saw her Wednesday morning, between six and seven o'clock; came into my place and wanted a sixpenny worth of liquor, and said that her husband was going to work, and she wanted to give him something good; about half past ten o'clock, Keys came in and said, "If my wife comes in don't give her any liquor, as she was drunk then, and had fallen upon the sidewalk and hurt her head;" did not see her after that; saw Keys about two o'clock P. M.; he appeared much excited, and I thought him drunk; he wanted me to go and see his wife, and see the condition she was in, as her friends would blame him; witness did not go.

To Jurors—Mrs. Keys got only a gill of liquor from me that day; Mr. Keys did not carry any away; at two o'clock he was very pale, and much excited; knew that deceased had requested a brother of hers to take her away to Quebec, because she was afraid to live with him; never knew that deceased drank much; he said that he did not get any of the liquor purchased in the morning by Mrs. Keys.

Anna Marlandt, sworn—Resides at No. 117 Butler-street; knew deceased; saw her on Wednesday evening last; saw Mr. Keys same time; saw their little girl in the street crying, with her apron all bloody, and carried her into the house; Keys was sitting there, and Mrs. Keys was on a bed on the floor; he asked me "what he could do with the woman?" I did not say anything in reply; the child is not two years old; the baby was in the crib in the house, when I went in.

To Jurors—Keys was in the same room with the deceased.

The Jury considered the testimony sufficient to hold the husband of deceased to await the action of the Grand Jury, and no more witnesses were examined.

The Jury rendered a verdict that Mary Keys died from compression of the brain, caused by blows inflicted by her husband, Samuel Keys.

REV. MR. GUION STAYS.—The congregation of St. John's Church having had information that their Rector, the Rev. T. T. GUION, had received a call to a church in the City of New-York, convened Wednesday evening, under an almost spontaneous impulse, and unanimously made an earnest expression of repugnance to the threatened severance of the tie, which, for about five years, has existed between them and their pastor, and adopted, in connection with others, the following resolution:

Resolved, That our Rector be affectionately and earnestly solicited to decline the call which he has received to a Church in the City of New-York, and to continue the present relation to St. John's Church.

The action of the meeting was forthwith communicated to Mr. GUION, who, to the gratification of the Committee which waited upon him, assented to the request which they presented.

BOSTONIANS VISITING OVER "INSTITUTIONS."—Eight members of the Joint-Committee on Ordinances of the Boston Common Council, have been visiting the Institutions on Blackwell's and Randall's Islands, during the last two days, under the guidance of Ex-Governor DUNN. Heretofore each of the charitable and corrective institutions of Boston has been under a separate board of direction, but the Massachusetts Legislature has lately passed an act consolidating them and placing all under a Board of Ten Governors to be elected by the Common Council, empowering the latter to draw up an ordinance specifying the duties of the Governors. The object of the Committee in visiting the New-York Institutions was to obtain such information of their practical operation as would assist them in the organization and management of their own.

On Thursday they visited Blackwell's Island, going leisurely through each establishment, and, Yankee-like, interrogating freely as they went. The arrangement and architecture of the buildings, the method of letting out the contracts for prison labor, the duties and powers of the Governors, and in fact everything was minutely inquired into, and all eliciting unbounded admiration.

Yesterday a portion of the Committee passed a pleasant time at Randall's Island with the children. Mr. RIPLEY, with his youthful army welcomed the visitors—the boys, to the music of their own band, going through military evolutions creditably, and adding to the novelty o the occasion. Gov. DUNN and Mr. THAYER, a member of the Committee, addressed the little fellows, and one of them, EDWARD RYAN, handsomely replied. By the way, Mr. RIPLEY intends to take a delegation of the boys to Boston, to attend the celebration at Charlestown, of the inauguration of the Statue of Gen. WARREN, on the 17th inst., when [illegible] will probably deliver an address. The [illegible] expressed great pleasure in all they saw, and seemed well satisfied with the success of the [illegible] system in operation here. Two of the [illegible] stated that they came much prejudiced against the centralization of power, but they are thoroughly converted and feel their institutions will be improved by the adoption of systems similar to ours.

BONDED WAREHOUSES IN THE HANDS OF UNDERWRITERS.—The Board of Fire Underwriters (composed of the officers and agents of the different Fire Insurance Companies) held a meeting on Thursday afternoon, to consider the matter of insuring storage, stores, and bonded warehouses. The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Resolved, That no building shall be hereafter considered a bonded warehouse, in which are kept any other than bonded goods.

Resolved, That an inspector be appointed to visit, at least once in each month, all bonded warehouses and all storage stores, and to report the condition of each promptly to each Company.

The appointment of an inspector was referred to the Standing Committee. Regulations were also adopted with reference to all storage stores, requiring that no smoking be permitted on the premises; that no open lights be allowed; that no egress be permitted except through the office, and other provisions tending to render such buildings more secure than formerly from the effects of spontaneous combustion, carelessness or design.

The destructive fire which occurred last week in GEO. W. BAKER'S storehouse in Furman-street, Brooklyn, which was caused by the ignition of a bundle of hay, of which a quantity was stored in the building, and which occasioned a loss of nearly $200,000, was the immediate cause that roused the Insurance Companies of the City to guard against the recurrence of similar losses. By the new regulations, no company will insure bonded warehouses at the former low rates, unless the proprietors of such establishments guarantee that only bonded goods are stored in them. Taking into consideration, in connection with this, the fact that the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington requires a certificate from all bonded warehouses, that they are first-class buildings, and are insured at lower rates than ordinary stores, it gives the bonded warehouse-man no alternative but to comply with the regulations of the insurance companies.

The Colored Home—Seventeenth Anniversary Celebration.

The friends and patrons, and those connected with the "Colored Home," in Sixty-first street, below First-avenue, celebrated its Seventeenth Anniversary on Thursday afternoon. The weather was unfavorable, but notwithstanding that, there was a very good attendance. A number arrived late in consequence of the very heavy rain that began to fall at the hour for the commencement of the anniversary exercises. Rev. Mr. MCFARLAND commenced with the reading of a portion of the Scriptures; and after singing by the meeting, Mr. RAY offered a prayer. He was followed by Rev. Mr. WELLS, who read the annual report, by which it appears that during the past year, the Home has enjoyed a large amount of prosperity. Until recently the City of New-York has paid 70 cents per week for the support of each person sent there by the authorities. Now the city pays 90 cents, or $41.60 a year each. Pensioners are received from private families and from any part of the State at the rate of $50 per annum. The remainder of the funds for the support of the Institution are contributed almost exclusively by private charity.

The statement of the number of pensioners in the Colored Home is as follows:

Number remaining May 1, 1856	298
Number received since May 1, 1856	357
Number of births	17
Total	672
Of these have died	62
Discharged pro forma, or dismissed	237
Total	299
Leaving now in the Institution	373

Of the deaths 37 were males and 45 were females.

The total amount of subscriptions for the year were	$591 00
Amount of Donations	451 29
Received for Board of Pensioners	283 00

The total amount received during the year was $1,325 25, of which $64 45 is still in the hands of the Treasurer.

After the report had been read 15 of the children sung, and appropriate remarks were made by Messrs. WELLS, REACH, THOMPSON and others.

The Institution is apparently in excellent condition, although much in need of funds.

ONE CLEAN STREET.—Broadway is clean from Bowling-green to Union-square. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, Mr. SMITH has fulfilled his engagement with the merchants so far. The machine-sweepers, two of them, in the course of four hours swept up such windrows of dirt, that, with all the carts they could get, it took 18 hours to cart it away. Three hundred tons, at least, were moved off in the way, while how much the rain swept away into the sewers no one can estimate.

Not Arranging for Walker.

NEW-YORK, Friday, June 12, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

I desire to state, through your columns, that the use of my name as Secretary of the meeting held last evening for the purpose of making arrangements for the public reception of General WALKER, was unauthorised by me, and that I do not approve of the objects of the meeting. EDWARD COOPER.

The Ohio Fugitive Case—The State to be Defended.

The Columbus State Journal says:

"We understand that Governor CHASE, at the earliest possible moment after reaching the city yesterday from Cincinnati, had an interview with Messrs. MASON and GOOD, who represent the Prosecuting Attorney of Clarke County, in the case before the Federal Judge at Cincinnati, involving the right of the State to enforce her own criminal laws within her own jurisdiction, against violators, whether Federal officials or others; and that he immediately telegraphed to Attorney General WOLCOTT to appear in the case on the part of the State, in conjunction with these gentlemen."

The Cleveland Herald adds:

"Attorney-General WOLCOTT passed through this city yesterday, on his way to Cincinnati, to attend to the case in behalf of the State. With such a Governor and such an Attorney General, the dignity of Ohio and the supremacy of her laws will be in safe keeping."

OFFICE OF J. S. REED & CO., Bankers,
MARION, Ohio, June 8, 1857.

S. C. HERRING & Co.—Gents: Our banking-house was broken open last night, and an unsuccessful attempt made to force open the Safe; gunpowder was used in quantities sufficient to break glass in the back room, twenty-five feet from the safe, and to displace pictures and furniture, as well as to blow the inside of one of the outside doors into small pieces, but your Hall's Powder Proof Lock resisted all efforts to effect an entrance. The burglars left a very good selection of tools—sledge-hammer, axe, chisels, jimmies, etc. It took three good strong men nearly an hour to remove the remains of the wreck so as to [illegible] the door, which, of course, remained unharmed. Considering the latter circumstance, together with the fact that no more doors awaited the thieves, we feel not concerned in opening the outside one, we have no hesitation in ordering a new door, and continuing our confidence in your "Burglar Proof Safes with Hall's Powder Proof Lock." One half the outer door is in good order. Can you make the other from measures in your books, or shall we send the ruins down to you?

We feel under so much obligation to you for the protection your safe has afforded us that we authorize you to make any use you may choose of this affair.

Very respectfully, J. S. REED & CO.

The subscribers have on hand, for sale, the largest assortment of FIRE AND BURGLAR-PROOF SAFES in the world, guaranteed to be equal to the above, and superior to any other now offered to the public.

"A WOMAN'S TRICK."

The capital joke related in yesterday's Express, of an English lady training her little pet poodle Bibi to jump into ladies' laps at balls and parties, and while the sweet creatures are in the act of caressing the perfidious villian, it unpaints their cheeks with its false and vigorous licking, does not apply, if it be distinctly understood, to Dr. FELIX GOURAUD'S inimitable LIQUID VEGETABLE ROUGE. The rouges which the said bew-ww-ww regaled itself with licking off, are the common rouges, unctuous in their nature; independent of this they are objectionable also from the fact of catching and retaining the dust and other floating matter with which the air is loaded, and especially so if the weather is very warm. GOURAUD'S LIQUID ROUGE, on the contrary, has all the permanence of a stain, and cannot be disturbed by the most violent friction or licking, except by washing with soap and water. It contains nothing unctuous, and the rich 'roseate hue it imparts to the cheek or lip is such an exact imitation of nature that the utmost scrutiny will fail to detect that the coloring is artificial. This celebrated ROUGE is in great demand throughout the Union, and is manufactured and sold by Dr. GOURAUD at his old established Laboratory, No. 67 Walker-street, first door from Broadway. The depot also of the world-renowned ITALIAN MEDICATED SOAP. Agents—Mrs. HAYES, Brooklyn; CALLENDER, Philadelphia; BATES, No. 132 Washington-street, Boston &c., &c.

OFFICE OF THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY.—NEW-YORK, April 7, 1857.—Notice is hereby given, that the Directors of the ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY have resolved to increase the Capital Stock of the Company, from One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Shares, to Two Hundred and Fifty-five Thousand Shares, which new shares will be allotted to the holders of the present stock, at the closing of the books on the 20th June next, and to such persons as may become stockholders by the conversion of Optional Rights, which expire on the 1st day of January, 1858, in the proportion of one share of new stock, to two shares of the old stock.

The Transfer Books will be closed on the 20th day of June next, and reopen on the 1st day of July next.

Those persons who shall become stockholders by the conversion of the present Optional Rights into Stock, on or before the second day of January, 1858, and after the first day of July next, will be required to receive, and pay for one-third of the new stock to which they may be entitled, at the time of such conversion. Optional Rights for the remaining two-thirds of the new Stock to which they may be entitled, will be issued to them, of the same tenor as those issued to parties who shall appear as stockholders, at the closing of the books on the 20th June next.

Parties converting Optional Rights will be required to pay to the Company all accrued interest on the installments from the time that interest shall have been paid on the installments to the holders of the present shares.

All stock which is not applied for before the 10th day of July next, and the installment paid thereon, will be forfeited to the Company, together with all rights which attach thereto.

The Directors have resolved to extend the time for the conversion of the existing Optional Rights, which, by their terms, expires on the 1st of January, 1858, so as to include the 3d day of January, 1858.

Information, pertaining to the details of this issue, can be obtained by inquiring at the office of the Company.

PROGRESS OF THE POLICE QUESTION.

The New Board Summons One Hundred and Ninety-nine Incbordinates to Appear for Trial, and Dismisses One Hundred and Thirty-five—The Old Board Continues to Try, Dismiss and Appoint, but Refuses to Allow the Names of the Appointees to be Published—Police Justice Connolly and the New Law—McCosker held to Bail, &c., &c., &c., &c.

The Metropolitan Police Commissioners met at their office in White-street at the usual hour yesterday, and designated 199 members of the Department, whom they authorized their clerk to summon for trial. They also dismissed 135 of the old force, and then adjourned to Monday.

The Mayor continues hard at work in weeding the Department of all who deny his authority or give countenance to the Metropolitan Commissioners. He made a great many appointments yesterday, but the names of all his appointees are studiously withheld from the reporters. They are all declared to be "sound," however, and of the "right Democratic stock." Nearly all the "boys" are now decorated with municipal stars, which can be had almost for the asking.

The Ward returns were all very barren of news yesterday. Capt. TRUMBULL, of the Eighth Ward, says, in his report to the Deputy Superintendent:

"In compliance with your orders, I last night called the roll at the new station-house, No. 135 Spring-street. Lieutenants KEELER and SEAGR, Sergeants Price, fifteen patrolmen and nine detailed men, and both door-men were absent—they refusing to recognize the orders of the Commissioners. Sergeants Lane, Chaney and Quinn, and 24 patrolmen promptly reported for duty and covered the District, this being within eight men of my usual number of patrolmen. I personally missed the others. Gamen Perrine, a detailed officer, reported to me this morning, making a total of 29 for the last.

CHARLES S. TRUMBULL,
Inspector of the Eighth Precinct.

Officer McCosker, of the Municipal force, who took a prisoner from Officer McConnell, of the Metropolitan Department, on Wednesday, appeared yesterday before Recorder SMITH, and gave bail to answer in the sum of $1,000.

POLICE JUSTICE CONNOLLY AND THE NEW POLICE LAW.

On Thursday, Deputy Superintendent CARPENTER detailed officers LAUTZ and GARDENIER for duty at the First District Police Court, at the Tombs. They reported themselves at once to Police Justice WELSH, who was on the bench, and their names were entered on the Court roll for duty. They appeared again at Court yesterday morning, when Justice CONNOLLY, who presided, inquired their business. They replied that they had been ordered to report themselves for duty there, by the Deputy Superintendent, and that they were obeying the order. Justice CONNOLLY thereupon informed them that they would not be permitted to any duty about the Court while he was on the bench. I do not recognize you as policemen, he said, nor the right of Ex Captain CARPENTER, nor Ex-[illegible] any of the gentlemen who [illegible] more than ten times that [illegible] I am not animated by any personal feeling in this matter, gentlemen. Many of the gentlemen connected with the Metropolitan Commission are personally known to me, and personally I respect them much. As a good citizen I believe it my duty to act as I do in this matter. There is no necessity of your coming here. There are now men enough and good men detailed here for police duty. If you are sent here by your superiors that a test may be had, why then I am willing to meet it. In a word gentlemen, I will not permit you to remain here—you must go.

The officers addressed declared their intention to remain, and one of them was heard to remark that the Court of Appeals was not situated in the Tombs, and that however competent a man might be to sentence a vagrant to the Island or a drunkard to the cells for ten days, he might not be equally competent by law or intellect to settle a question of Constitutional law upon which the most eminent men in the State appeared to differ.

Justice CONNOLLY did not hear these last remarks as if he did he paid no attention to them.

LAUTZ and GARDENIER remained about the Court until it was adjourned for the day.

AT THE COURT OF SESSIONS.

The Municipal detailed men at the Court of Special Sessions die hard. Some of them who declared that they would not obey the order to vacate and make room for the Metropolitan men, became slightly obstreperous yesterday, and attempted to prevent the new officers from entering or performing their duties about the Grand Jury room. This fact being brought to the notice of the District-Attorney, he wrote a note to the removed men, informing them that their services were no longer needed about his office, or the Grand Jury-room. One, still stubborn and doubtful, locked the door of the jury room, (there was no one inside,) put the key in his pocket, and went to Mayor WOOD for advice. The Mayor ordered the man to return forthwith and deliver up the key, which of course was done.

AN INDIGNANT LIEUTENANT.

Second-Lieutenant HITCHMAN, of the Nineteenth Ward, having received a summons to appear before the New Commissioners for trial, replies in a note to Deputy CARPENTER, which concludes thus:

"And not wishing to place myself with such notorious men under surveillance of the Municipal Police, I most sincerely hope the "august body," composed of Messrs. DRAPER & Co., may act in accordance with their every wish, and dismiss all but their "Partisan Martyrs" from the Department which they are pretending to control, and thus have an opportunity of conferring place and power upon their faithful and pliant tools."

Another Candidate for the Gallows—Death of William Sherman—Coroner's Inquest.

WILLIAM SHERMAN, the sailor who was stabbed in the abdomen in Cherry-street, on Tuesday last, while engaged in a squabble with two colored sailors, died of his injuries on Tuesday night, at the New-York Hospital. Coroner CORNEY held an inquest upon the body yesterday afternoon. The facts elicited by the evidence did not vary materially from those concerning the matter already published in the TIMES. SHERMAN, who was a native of Ireland, and but 21 years of age, was intoxicated on the afternoon in question, and wilfully stumbled against two negroes (the prisoners) who were passing along; one of them resented and struck SHERMAN in the face. SHERMAN then pursued the colored men and stopped their progress, whereupon the one who had given the blow, turned about and drawing a knife from his pocket, opened it and thrust its blade into the abdomen of SHERMAN, who staggered and fell. Both negroes were thereupon arrested by some citizens and given over to the police. The transaction occurred between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and was witnessed by several persons. The prisoners are both young men,—one is 22 and the other is 21 years of age. One was born in Virginia and the other in Maryland. Both entered a plea of "not guilty."

After an examination the Coroner's Jury retired, and soon agreed upon the following verdict:

"That the said WILLIAM SHERMAN came to his death from the effects of a stab inflicted in his abdomen, on the 9th inst., in Cherry-street, at the hands of STEPHEN PINKETT, and that SAMUEL WATKINS was an accessory to the fatal deed."

The accused were then placed in the hands of officers of the Fourth Ward, who conveyed them to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

BURGLARY AND PISTOL SHOOTING IN SING SING.—A daring attempt at burglary was made early Wednesday morning upon the Mt. Pleasant Academy, Sing Sing, in which, through the recklessness of one of the burglars, Prof. MAURER, of the Institution, came near losing his life. Prof. MAURER had been to Tarrytown, and on his return at 2 o'clock in the morning was surprised at hearing the sound of footsteps in the hall as he was passing up stairs. He called out to know who the persons were, and directly a pistol was fired at him, the ball of which passed through his coat, vest and shirt on the left side, and grazed the skin sufficient to draw blood. The parties, two in number, at once made a rush for the front door and escaped. An immediate alarm was raised, but the vagabonds have not yet been discovered.

WHO'S YOUR HATTER?

The countryman just come to town,
Expies its riches and renown;
He gazes round with vacant stare,
And feels bewildered by despair.
The busses, cabs, the shops, the boys,
The busy din, incessant noise;
Amid the pavement's patter, clatter,
He hears the question, "Who's your hatter?"
"My hatter? why ask this of me?"
"Just wait a moment, you shall see.
Your prize appearances, you say,
And would unto the world convey
By outside garb, your claim to be
Respectable as those you see.
Although your trousers, coat and vest
Be neat in form, of make the best,
We do not care a straw for that,
If you put on a shabby hat.
If you would follow in the van,
Know 'tis the hat that makes the man,
A proper cover for the head,
In fashion's form shows you well bred."
"But how, amidst the various styles
Of fashionable nutty tiles,
Shall I select one to attain
This object and keep out the rain?"
"Just step to KNOX's on Broadway,
The first of hatters we can say,
And there you, to your heart's content,
Will find your money not ill-spent.
Then as you walk throughout the town,
You'll carry on your head renown;
And then it surely will not matter
If any ask you "Who's your hatter?"
Oh, no, you'll own with pride 'tis KNOX,
Whose customers are seen in flocks."
KNOX may be found on any day,
Corner of Fulton and Broadway,
And all our friends we recommend
To KNOX the fashionable's friend.

NEW-YORK, Friday, June 12—P. M.

The California arrival is a highly satisfactory one; $1,920,376 in treasure for this port, and favorable accounts of the continued productive richness of the mines. In addition to the New-York manifest, the steamer on the Pacific side brought down to the Isthmus $485,000 for Europe direct. The shipment altogether is full $250,000 ahead of the previous packet. The mining and financial news is thus summed up by one of our San Francisco cotemporaries:

"The accounts from the miners are all of an encouraging character, and from the heavy deposits of snow in the mountains, the probabilities are that the miners will have a good supply of water throughout the entire year. This will to a certain extent interfere with the river washings in the Fall, but the loss will be far more than compensated by the increased steady yield of the tunnel and hill claims.

The money market gives less trouble this mail departure than usual. The receipts of dust from above have been large, and the discount facilities of the banks extended somewhat more freely. Rates, 2½@3 cent., are unaltered. Bars for shipment are in full supply, and 870 is quoted at par. There has been a good inquiry for Spanish dollars, and sales for the East Indies have been made at 12@3 cent. premium. The export duty in Mexico having been raised to 6@3 cent., even this figure does not pay the cost of importation.

During the fortnight, the arrivals at this port have been thirteen from foreign and Atlantic ports, and thirty-two coasters, viz: from China, ships Kate Hooper, Archer, (Br.) Hamilton; from New-York, ships John Milton, Electric Spark, Ann Eldridge; from Boston, ships Charger and Noondag; from Tahuta, Haw. brig Suerie; from Australia, (Br.) schooner Sea Witch; from Honolulu, schooner Gen. Morgan; from Manilla, bark Rebekah and schooner Wanderer.

Our own Money Market to-day is quiet, and the Street supply easy. The Domestic Exchange Brokers are buying a considerable amount of funds on the neighboring cities, and nearly all the interior exchanges are in favor of New-York. The ease in Money here, and the advices of continued high rates on the other side, are inducing the Bankers to remit freely to England and France in Bullion. The Havre and Bremen steamers to-morrow will add about $600,000 to the shipments of the week. The Discount Brokers quote higher rates for paper over 60 days, but the offering of first-class names is not excessive. Short dates are scarce, and almost the only choice acceptances offered are drawn against West India Sugars, of which the stock on sale and in public store is very large. The Sub-Treasury disbursements to-day were $254,909, against only $58,685. The balance is down to $11,887,573.

The low prices quoted on the Stock list this week are attracting some outside orders, and the market to-day gained a little strength, although against a pretty determined opposition to a recovery in prices from the Bear speculators. The Western Railroad list was 2¼@3 cent. higher on Galena, 1¼ on Rock Island, 1@3 cent. on Southern Michigan, and ½@1 cent. on Toledo. It was 1@3 cent. weaker on Illinois Central, and 2@3 cent. lower on La Crosse. Some of the supporters of the last named Road have made themselves conspicuous as Bears against Milwaukee and Mississippi, and a slight measure of retribution is not unreasonable. The two New-York Roads were better to-day; Central sold for 81¾ cash, and Erie for 82@3 cent. The former is the special object of attack at present, and contracts were put out at 80@3 cent. on six months' option. There was quite an excitement in Reading. Very large sales at the early Board as high as 78¾, but immediately after the adjournment a rumor was circulated that one of the tunnels on the line had fallen in, and upon this there was a rush to sell at 77¼@77@3 cent. No Philadelphia dispatch of which we could find trace advised serious damage, and we presume none has followed the accident; but the stock here was too firm, as against the short sellers, to suffer any chance to escape to weaken the price. The Railway Bond list was weak. Illinois Central 7s have fallen off to 97@3 cent., and Michigan Southern Sinking Funds to 70@3 cent.

THE FOREIGN TRADE.

From the New-York Tribune.

From official tables made up at the Treasury Department, Washington, it appears that the imports and exports at the six principal collection districts, namely, Boston, New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New-Orleans and San Francisco, for the first three quarters of the fiscal year, ending March 31, 1857, were as follows:

FOR THE NINE MONTHS ENDING MARCH 31, 1857:

	Aggregate Exports.	Aggregate Imports.	Total.
Boston	$19,628,766	$22,041,212	$32,669,978
New-York	90,457,416	178,276,320	268,618,736
Philadelphia	5,808,168	12,259,480	18,067,658
Baltimore	10,290,800	7,562,217	17,853,017
New-Orleans	63,198,419	17,302,521	80,490,940
San Francisco	10,869,800	6,979,200	17,849,000
Total:	$205,331,050	$246,442,950	$451,754,610

Of the $12,670,482 worth of foreign merchandise exported during the three-quarters, $7,138,072 were free and $5,547,410 dutiable.

Of the imported foreign merchandise, (amounting to $246,433,950, there were $24,126,187 free and $212,264,147 dutiable.

Of the exports $192,061,170 was of domestic produce. The above figures show an excess of imports of about $40,000,000, which has been met by the exports of gold.

This is a very imperfect as well as incorrect view. The Specie export is included in the return from the six ports. But there are 68 other ports, of which nothing is said, and the bulk of whose Foreign Trade is on the Export side. Let us take the six, as above, for three quarters this year, and the 68 for the last year, assuming the latter not to have increased their trade:

Exports of 6 ports, 1857 ..... $205,331,050
Exports of 68 ports, 1856 64,324,819
Total $269,655,870
Imports 6 ports, 1857 ..... $246,433,950
Imports 68 ports, 1856 ..... 30,568,318—$277,000,268
Resulting difference favor Exports $13,476,708

The Great Railway Opening.

From the Special Correspondent of the New-York Daily Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sunday, June 7, 1857.

DEAR SIR: The newspapers will furnish you through their general correspondence, abundant accounts of the festivities marking the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad opening. Upon that score I could add nothing. Perhaps, however, you would like to hear from one who has no individual interests to warp or color his judgment, some suggestions as to the advantages of this great work in point of location; in relation to the character of its construction, its probable durability, cost of working and repairs, and its prospect of developing a valuable way-business in both passengers and freight. Upon all these points I am free to say that the Ohio and Mississippi road will compare most favorably with any in the United States over which I have traveled,—and I am quite familiar with the principal railroad lines in the Northern, Eastern, Middle and Northwestern States. Of course I do not mean to say that the travel and traffic over this road is to become immediately as great as over any other; but I do mean that it passes through a country so fertile, and brings into prompt and the most direct communication points of such great commercial importance, that of necessity their speedy development under the stimulus and encouragement of this railroad enterprise, is an inevitable necessity, carrying with it a career of prosperity in the future for the road itself, which can scarcely be over-estimated.

The road between this point and Vincennes, Ind., has been in operation for some time, and its advantages you probably know all about. It passes in an almost air-line over beautiful rolling prairies, plentifully interspersed with groves of timber, and watered by many small streams. Between Cincinnati and Seymour, also, the road is not altogether new. Here it winds its way along the margin of some rather crooked rivers, but the curves are easy, and generally the grades are light. Everywhere the land over which it passes is exceedingly fertile, holding out irresistible invitations to its speedy cultivation and development. This is true of nearly every mile of the route. Scarce an acre not easily susceptible of improvement is visible, if we except those covered by forests, the timber in which is valuable, and must furnish profitable employment for an army of industrious woodsmen. Indeed there is no comparison between Northern Indiana and the southern portion of the State, traversed by this road, so much does the latter surpass the former; and when the "Egypt" of Illinois shall be developed by the population sure to follow in the track of the locomotive, the boastful counties comprising the northern tier will need look to their laurels.

From Seymour to Vincennes—a hundred miles or more—the road is new. Here we expected to dance by car-loads to the music of the steam-whistle, as we were whirled along over a rough and uneven track. Never were we more disappointed. Although the road is but partially ballasted, the universal testimony is that the running was smoother, steadier, and freer, from jolting than that over the New-Jersey and Camden and Amboy railroads, long as the latter have been worked. This is owing in part, doubtless, to the broad guage adopted by the Ohio and Mississippi Company, but it is due still more to the great care which has been taken in grading and solidifying the road-bed, in laying the track, and in the firm elasticity of the material of which the bed is composed. It is not often that these qualities of solidity and elasticity are so admirably combined. A very smal proportion of trestle work has been found necessary throughout the entire line of this road,—the bridges are not numerous, but very substantial, and the construction in all respects gives promise of great durability and very moderate cost for repairs, as there is little opportunity for land slides, washing away of the road-bed, or any of the other accidental incidents which often enhance so largely the cost of keeping a road in order. It will readily be seen that the advantages enumerated—light grades, easy curves, long stretches of straight track, solidity of the road bed, and non-liability to suffer from rains or floods—combine to promise a cost of working the road rather below than above the average. Fuel is abundant and cheap,—to be had indeed in any quantity for the cost of cutting. Already the stream of paying travel begins to pour through this avenue of communication just opened between the Atlantic seaboard and the Mississippi,—and all along its line the farmers are anxiously awaiting the hour when they can transport their produce over it, and receive the supplies of light lumber and other staples required from abroad. Perhaps you may deem me enthusiastic in my depiction. If so, I can only answer that I have expressed, in terms quite inadequate, the general and spontaneous convictions of myself and fellow-travelers, who kept our eyes open in going over the road for the express purpose of learning its character and judging of its probable future. I know nothing personally of its managers, save their liberality towards their guests upon this festive celebration; but if the affairs of the Company are conducted with anything approaching the skill and prudence which we may expect from those who had the enterprise to carry so great a work to completion, I shall rely with entire confidence upon the not distant future to vindicate every word that I have here written.

In closing let me add a tribute to the management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, over which I have frequently passed, and always with new pleasure. It would be difficult to say anything novel of it,—for the fame of its grand scenery, and of the engineering triumphs it illustrates in climbing and crossing the Alleghanies is world-wide. Its line is completed at last by the opening of the branch road from Grafton to Parkersburg, Va.—a road which, instead of threading the valleys and winding a devious way around the spurs of the mountains, strikes boldly across the ridges, dives through countless tunnelled hills, and opens up a rugged country as rich in mineral resources, probably, as any east of the Ohio River. Throughout the entire line and branches the management is as nearly perfect as can be. Certainly, regularity, economy and safety are everywhere apparent in its operations. Every officer seems thoroughly conversant with his duty, and ready to discharge its lightest detail with unerring fidelity; while each employe is engaged apparently in amiable rivalry to emulate the example thus set by his superior. But my letter is already too long and I must bring it abruptly to a close. J. W. S.

The Unadilla Bank.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Inasmuch as there has been a paragraph circulating through the public prints, to the effect that the Unadilla Bank had failed to redeem its notes, we thought it due to the public to state a few facts.

Since April, 1856, the Metropolitan Bank has been endeavoring by every means in its power—such as demanding coin, and hoarding up the notes until the accumulations amounted to upwards of $60,000, and even as high as $80,000—to force the Unadilla Bank into a system of redemption different from that required by law. The first presentation was in July, 1856, of $20,000. A few days subsequent $40,000 were presented. Drafts were offered in payment for these notes, and accepted for all but $10,000, which were protested, and returned to New-York, to test the law of 1851, as their agent said. City bank bills were tendered for these protested notes, and, after some hesitation, accepted. From that time to the present the notes have been held until $60,000 or $80,000 had accumulated, when they would be presented at the counter of the Bank. In this manner there has been redeemed upwards of $407,000. All this was unpredictable to the Metropolitan Bank, but they hoped to reimburse themselves when they should have succeeded in forcing the Unadilla Bank into a system of redemption similar to that imposed on a majority of the country banks of the State. The last presentation at the Bank amounted to $57,000. Drafts similar to those that had been accepted all along before were tendered for these notes; $47,000 were accepted, while $10,000 were again protested, to test the law. This law, so much referred to, embraces a clause to the effect that fifteen days shall be allowed a country bank to provide itself with specie. This clause was inserted solely for the protection of country banks against maliciously-inclined City banks. For the $10,000 bills, under protest, were offered, the same and no better than the drafts before refused. They were accepted by the Metropolitan Bank, but no reference made to testing the law above referred to. The Metropolitan is now gathering up the notes again, and Mr. WILLIAMS, the President, says he shall protest the whole amount on the next presentation. Drafts, accompanied by an affidavit, if required, will be offered in payment of these notes.

The Unadilla Bank always has and always will redeem its circulating notes, agreeably to the banking laws of the State of New-York.

The whole thing resolves itself into this—that the Metropolitan insists upon coercing us into redeeming our notes from them in New-York at one-half less than the law allows, and little owing to our refusal to accept their dictatorial terms that they have pursued this aggressive course towards the Unadilla Bank.

We have acted on the defensive from the beginning. We refuse to submit to the coercive terms they seek to force upon us, and we will not be coerced into any such oppressive arrangement.

A. B. WATSON, President.
